The New First M. E. Church

A Proper Site at Methodist Center.

It is now an accepted fact that the First Methodist Episcopal Church of this city is to have a new building. At a recent meeting of their Board of Trustees they placed themselves upon record to build a new $125,000 church. Since then committees have been appointed to devise ways and means of financing the project, to draw up plans and specifications and to select a suitable site. At this time the most important consideration in connection with the entire project that remains unsettled is the selection of a site. While it is known that the First Church owns lots at the corner of K and Fifth streets which were purchased with the intention of locating the new church there, nevertheless there is considerable question at this time concerning the wisdom of the same. While it must be admitted that the matter of a suitable site is one that immediately concerns First Church, yet it is also true that in a large sense it more or less concerns the Methodist interests of the entire city, and so far as the interests of First Church coincide with those of the University of Puget Sound it is of concern to the Methodism of the entire Puget Sound country.

Mistakes Expensive

In building a $125,000 church Methodism cannot afford to make a mistake in the location. If a structure is put up involving that amount of money it will be the finest and most expensive house of worship in the city of Tacoma. It will be a building that will be a landmark for Tacoma Methodism for at least one hundred years.

While it is proper that present needs should be a primary consideration in the erection of a church, nevertheless men should always be far sighted enough so as to provide for the future at the same time they are supplying the needs of today. That Tacoma will undergo radical changes in the next twenty-five years may be fairly judged from the large number of changes that have taken place in even so short a time as the last five years. One hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars is too much money to put into a location that will cease to be a central one inside of the next five years and that is likely to be abandoned as a church center inside of the next ten years.

Fallacies Concerning Downtown Church.

There are some things to be said in favor of the downtown church. However, it would be difficult to find a Methodist church located in the heart of a business district today that is a spiritual power within that city. The wideawake and prosperous churches are today found in the residence sections and not in the business quarters. This is particularly true in Methodism. The only downtown churches that seem to be thriving are those where the congregations meet in theaters or large auditoriums and where the organization is more of a local than of a connectional character and that has been brought together more because of the personality of the preacher than of the denominationalism of the church. As yet Methodism has never furnished a favorable soil for churches of this character. Methodist people make much of the church home and are accordingly loyal to the same. To build a downtown church for the sake of catching the traveling man is to justify a thing because of the exception rather than of the rule.

At the present location the First Methodist church is not a downtown church. If it is moved to the corner of K and Fifth streets it will be even less a downtown church than it is now. The fact that the First Christian, First Congregational and Chris-

The enterprise, marked by varying vicissitudes of fortune, among which may be mentioned the failure to locate the school at Port Townsend, triumphed over all obstacles and the Annual Conference of August, 1890, was able to say: "Resolved, that we are gratified to learn from a prospectus just issued, that the Puget Sound University, located at Tacoma, Washington, has completed its building, organized its faculty of instruction and will open its halls for students on the 15th of September." The conference also gave a cordial welcome to the President-elect Rev. F. B. Cherington, of the Southern California Conference. After two years Dr. Cherington resigned to accept the pastorate of the First M. E. church of Tacoma and was succeeded by Rev. Crawford R. Thoburn, a graduate of the class of '85 of the Allegheny College, and son of Bishop Thoburn. Dr. Thoburn remained at the head of the school until his death at Portland in 1899. His early and lamented death, at the age of thirty-five, was regretted by all the friends of the University. Chancellor Thoburn was a man of large vision, of great energy and enthusiasm, and commanded the very highest respect. In his presence, one found himself in the company of no ordinary man. For the year 1894-1895, during the illness of President Thoburn, Prof. C. W. Darrow, who had come to Washington from Pennsylvania, was in charge of the school. Prof. Darrow still resides in Tacoma, one of its honored citizens.

In 1893 owing to the financial stringency in all parts of the United States, the trustees were compelled to sell the fine University building to the city of Tacoma. It is now the

The Coming Debate Tryout

Prof. Cummins.

The Carnival is over and the preliminary debate contest has been postponed until Thursday evening of next week in order that all those who desire to enter may have the opportunity to do so. It is encouraging to report that no less than twelve young men and women have already entered and are preparing to participate in same.

The questions offered for discussion are as follows:

"Resolved, That foreign immigration to the United States should be further restricted by the imposition of an educational test."

"Resolved, That woman suffrage should be provided for by constitutional amendment."

"Resolved, That the honor system should be adopted for all students above the academy grade."

Each student participating in the tryout will be allowed eight minutes' time, and may choose either one of the questions proposed, speaking upon either side as he may wish.

Five persons will act as judges, three of whom will be members of the faculty, the other two being invited from without the University. The judges will select three debaters to compose the team with one alternate from the college and a like number from the academy. The person receiving the highest marking from each department will act as leader of the team from that department.

Any one may enter the tryout, but only those who are carrying a sufficient amount of work of proper grade will be allowed to participate in the contest representing the University of Puget Sound against other institutions.

The shibboleth for the past week has been "Are you going to the Carnival?" Each one of us looked forward to the time when the Carnival would come, and be gone. Apathy and doubt gave place to love, labor and energy as the days flew by and by the time the Carnival opened things were well under way. The parade was a credit to the student body and cast no reflections upon the school as everything was orderly, attractive and well conducted.

There was some feeling of uneasiness among the young ladies as to the propriety of appearing in the parade and a number of them would not be reconciled to the idea. No doubt the promoters of any future appearance of our student body upon the streets will consult the young ladies beforehand. It is only natural that a lady with those finer qualities which we most admire in women, should shrink at appearing upon the streets in a parade. Of course, we recognize that this parade was a college affair and would admit of more liberty than most social functions, and we are glad that things were conducted in such a manner as to leave no feeling of embarrassment. Let us not, in the future, ask our young lady students to appear in anything where we would not like to carry our own dignity and reserve.

The Carnival in itself was a success and was well appreciated. The student body rallied in the usual manner and entered, with all their might, into the spirit of the affair and as heretofore their good judgment and artistic taste, was seen on every hand.

The terms examinations, is all that is left to us, to bind us to the past. If we fall short in some ways we hope the faculty will remember that the Carnival was "an education in itself" and that we have gotten an experience from it which will no doubt compensate for the loss of a few hours class work.

THE COMING DEBATE TRYOUT.

In case any one should make the team and be unqualified at the time of the inter-collegiate contest, the alternate will take his place on the team.

This tryout will no doubt be the most interesting local contest of the season because it is of such a nature as to concern the entire student body. Let each and every student select his favorite and be present to encourage him or her to win a place if possible. The yell leader will have some special yells of a local nature for the occasion and some student songs will also be in order.

The contest will begin promptly at 8 o'clock on Thursday evening, December 15, in the Chapel.

There is yet time for several more entries and quite a splendid opportunity for academy students. The committee will be glad to assist any one who can arrange to take part in the contest.

Y. W. C. A. SPREAD.

Wednesday noon, December 7, in the Domestic Science dining room, the Y. W. C. A. cabinet and their committees served luncheon in honor of Miss Hopkins, the state secretary of college Y. W. C. A. work. A number of ladies of the faculty were present beside the girls, making a crowd of about thirty. A very delightful hour was spent for the girls certainly know how to serve a dainty spread in a pleasant manner. The little informal chat with Miss Hopkins, in which she spoke of the Bellingham convention and preparations for the big conference in June, was enjoyed to the utmost. We would all like to see much more of such a delightful talker and enjoyable companion as Miss Hopkins but must be content with the few hours that she is with us in her little visits and try to profit by them. Miss Hopkins also spoke for a few minutes in Chapel Wednesday morning.

ECHOES FROM THE THEOLOGIES.

She, a high grade, stenographer, not Miss R—: "I don't understand these titles. M. A. is Master of Arts, D. D. is doctor of divinity, but what does B. D. mean?"

Bachelor of divinity, miss.

Oh! But I supposed Dr. Foster had been married, how can he be a bachelor?"

Prof. Cummins has such a large family that when the scarlet fever came in there wasn't enough to go around.

The Seniors are triplets this year. Put just wait till 1911.

Prof. C. tried to wear Dr. F.'s armor, but it wouldn't fit.

"Said a young cadet to his Juliette: I'm like a ship at sea.

Exams are near,
'Tis much I fear,
That busted I will be."

"Oh, no," said she, "ashore I'll be, Come rest, our journey's o'er."

Then silence fell,
And all was well,
For the ship had hugged the shore.
Naw-tea ate.

"E PLURIBUS UNUM."

'Twas in the soft gray twilight,
When the night was sweet and new,
As I sat upon a little seat,
Just wide enuf for two.
There in the soft gray twilight,
The seed of love was sown—
It might have been—but it wasn't,
For I was there alone.

A farmer, finding a motor horn in the road, took it home, determined to turn it to some wise use. So he taught his poultry to gather for meals at its toot, and all nature may be said to have smiled, till one morning a motor car, passing the farmyard, blew a loud blast. The full strength of the poultry yard instantly ran out into the road, and began to pursue the car with all the ardor of railway travelers charging into the refreshment room for a drink. At the end of the fifth mile, fourteen pullets and three roosters succumbed from exhaustion. The rest are still running.

At last the girls have achieved a victory. Last Tuesday there were so many girls present at the noon meeting that many chairs had to be brought in and also some girls had to stand. Miss Hopkins, our state secretary, led the meeting. Every girl was glad she had attended. Let us go out and try to make those around us happy and lead them to a higher life by our Christian example. We are always glad to have Miss Hopkins with us. Did you get some of the Y. W. C. A. candy? Keep your eyes open for the next sale.

Y. M. Notes

G. R. T.

The rush of the Carnival is over and the Y. M. is settling back to steady work.

Dr. Wilson did not have a big hearing, but it was a good one, and a lot of good was received from the talk. Dr. Wilson is a convincing speaker and certainly knew his subject.

Next Tuesday the subject will be "Thought, a Test of Character." Mr. Matthews is going to lead and it is safe to say that we will have a good, lively meeting.

The debating teams representing the Freshman and Sophomore classes decided to postpone their debate from the original date, December 5, until January 9, 1911.

Owing to the fact that most of the debaters are interested in the college tryouts, which occur next Wednesday, and that several of them were connected with the Carnival, it was felt that a postponement would enable both teams to enter the contest better prepared than would be possible otherwise.

Professors Cummins and Wright will act as coaches for both teams, and as both men are exceptionally fine debaters, the contestants hope to profit greatly by their advice and co-operation.

Philo meetings are always interesting and full of life, but last Tuesday evening was declared by all the members to be out of the ordinary. The program was splendid and after a short intermission the business meeting was held.

The usual order of business was observed, until the order of special committee reports was reached. Here indeed was a treat for the Philos and the cause was this:

The electric light bulbs in the Preachers' room, where the Philos hold their meetings, have probably been doing their solemn duty, and throwing out their rays of mellow light every since the Preachers' room was wired for electricity. At any rate they were so mellow that it was necessary to either get brighter ones or cease trying to read altogether.

Accordingly a committee consisting of Messrs. Thompson, Warren and Boyde was appointed to arrange some means of obtaining better light.

This committee, when their turn came, gave a report that has never been equaled before.

Mr. Thompson, being chairman, made the first part of the report, announcing that the committee had, as a personal gift to the society, replaced the old bulbs by new ones; and in beautiful and almost poetic words, described the urgent need of the same.

Next Mr. Warren gave his part of the report, dealing with the light proposition, from the time of its infancy, until its almost perfect powers of today. His words were expressive and he ended by urging the Philos to realize the appreciation that they owed the committee for the thing they had done.

Mr. Boyde came next, presenting to the library the old bulbs. His speech was full of feeling, as he stated the great need of light in the library after 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The reason for the need was of lighting up the corners where the under classmen were inclined to gather—to study.

On the whole the report was very good, and was accepted with due appreciation by the society.

Come and hear the Philos, it will be worth your while.

H. C. S.

The last meeting of the H. C. S. was well attended and all who were present declared the program to be the best given this year.

After the devotions, led by Mr. Crockett, we listened to one of Webster's orations. Mr. Whealdon, who gave this oration, certainly did it justice and literally threw himself into the meaning of the oration. Prof. Scott, our critic, has well said that "It is in Whealdon to be an orator."

Adin Marlatt followed with a humorous reading from one of Cap'n Eli's stories. Laughter and mirth are things that we all like to have and Mr. Marlatt's reading certainly produced them.

Max recovered himself only by a great effort, almost upsetting his chair in doing so. But a good and pleasing reader can always entertain an audience.

who have no hesitation about flunking the poor student, was humorously told by Jack Murbach in a parody of Hamlet. There was plenty of truth as well as poetry in what Mr. Murbach said. This was rather sad, although it is needless to say so.

Love and politics don't often mix, but the original story by Mr. Decker certainly contained both. His story was well written and well read and held the attention of his hearers from start to finish. And it was not merely an entertaining narrative, but one which had a moral as well. Oh, yes, there's originality in all of us if we only develop it. "Keep it up, Decker!"

Those who saw the "Bull Terrier and the Baby" are commenting most favorably on it. This comedy was put on by the H. C. S. and their Theta "sisters" in the Carnival held last week.

Miss Mae Reddish and James Knox carried the leading parts and were ably assisted. We also had decorations in the gym for the Carnival which attracted much attention. Now that the Carnival is over and exams are here, let us rest a moment before we take up our duties in the coming term of winter. F. J.

Amphictyon

The Carnival again interfered with the Amphictyon program, but those who took part in the "Proposal Under Difficulties," represented us, as well as if we had had a program.

We will soon move into the room formerly occupied by the Altrurian Literary Society. The pennants and banners which our girls made for us the night before the Carnival will serve as decorations to make our new hall more attractive.

The beautiful picture awarded by Mrs. Simpson will also be there. It will be one of the most treasured possessions of the Amphictyons.

We wish to add to our report of last week that Miss Ruth Pitts was elected reporter.

THE NEW FIRST

tian Science churches are already in that neighborhood would seem to be a good reason for seeking another section rather than going there. That section is already overchurched. It would seem that if one were to judge by the signs of the times that South Tacoma and the tideflat district was destined to become the railroad and factory center of the city, that the business section would more and more creep up the hill and in the direction of the High school and Stadium, and that the district neighboring the High school would more and more become a section of hotels and apartment houses. It does not require very much foresight to be able to see that under present conditions either Epworth or Mason M. E. churches would take the lead as being the strongest and most influential Methodist church in the city. While it is immaterial from an individual standpoint as to which church may take the lead, nevertheless from the standpoint of the larger interests of the University of Puget Sound this might become of vital importance.

University the Logical Center.

In the judgment of every impartial observer the University must appeal as being the logical center of the Methodism of this city. While the Methodism of Tacoma has never taken its University as seriously as it should, it is equally true that Methodism has never taken itself as seriously as it should. While the University has made no better showing than the rest of Methodism in the city, yet it must be conceded that it has done quite as well. For any Methodist pastor of a Tacoma church or a member of the same to feel that he or she has no direct responsibility to the University is as great an error as to feel that all direct responsibility begins and ends at one's own threshold. The success of the University should be the pride of every one of the 3,000 Methodists in this city, and its failure would as certainly reflect upon them as a cloud casts a shadow upon an object when it intercepts the light of the sun. It is true that the University is having a hard struggle and putting up a desperate fight for existence. This, however, cannot continue much longer. It will either close its doors, to the everlasting shame of Tacoma Methodism, or the Methodism of this city and section will get under it and make it the great institution that it ought to be and that Methodism must have if it hopes to enjoy the prestige that it has in Eastern states.

If there is to be a Methodist University in Tacoma then it should never be moved from its present location. Few people realize how much its present location has had to do with its success. It is a matter of arithmetic and not of imagination that its central location in the city is worth no less than $20,000 a year to its student body. The University needs the full support of First Church. In its new building First Church has the opportunity of giving the University a boost without extra cost to itself. The University is more nearly in the residence-center than the proposed site upon K street, and methinks quite as much in the midst of the membership of First Church as it would be if located upon K street. In front of the University campus are three triangles belonging to the University which should be used for park purposes rather than for buildings. Diagonally across from the University is an entire half block of land entirely vacant. This tract of ground is unquestionably the most strategic site for a Methodist church in the city of Tacoma. Located at the junction of the Sixth avenue and Division avenue street car lines, two of the best and busiest lines in the city; located upon a higher altitude than any other church in the city; located near the heart of a rapidly growing and improving residence section, and located at the very door of the University of Puget Sound where church and school could co-operate in every undertaking, First Church would have a location that would be little less than ideal. It does not require a flight of imagination in order to perceive how the school could be of immense assistance to the church as well as the church of great benefit to the school.

An Institutional Church.

When the Methodism of this city invests $125,000 in a church building it should do so with the thought of making it a seven and not a one day church. It should become a center of religious activity and with its spirit permeate every other Methodist church of this city and entire district. With such a building and such a plan it would afford the University suitable apartments for a conservatory of music, an ample opportunity for a Sunday school training department, a fine large auditorium for commencement exercises and other large University events, as well as for the development of numerous other interests. It is needless to say that in all of these the church would be as largely profited as the University. Again the nearness of the church would make it the University church, where the large majority of our students would attend instead of being scattered over the city as they now are. For the purposes of a large chorus choir, promoting the work of the Epworth League, and securing assistance in the Sunday school, the church would in every way be strengthened by the arrangement.

With the three triangles used as a park the church building would have such an approach and be set off in such a conspicuous way that no other structure in the city, not even the High school building, would be comparable to it. Nor is it visionary to believe that the University buildings will always remain the small wooden structures they now are. Truly it is not too much to hope that some day piles of stone will supplant those of wood. When that day comes then the University will become the first consideration of the Methodism of this city rather than a secondary one as it has been in the past. We should not forget that the strong successful schools of Methodism will reflect more credit upon the cities that contain them than all of the churches combined. We have all heard of Northwestern University, the University of Syracuse and Old Wesleyan, but how much do we ever hear concerning the churches of Evanston, Syracuse or Middletown? The individual Christian school during the last 500 years has meant more than the individual church in advancing Christ's Kingdom upon earth. The glory of both has rested in the fact that they co-operated with each other to promote the common interests of the Kingdom.

Epworth Church Benefited.

The question is raised as to how this would affect Epworth church. The answer is that the problem of Epworth is not so vastly different from that of First Church. First of all, in this age of centralization and consolidation, it would not be a lack of wisdom if Epworth and First Churches should unite to form one great organization. However, if this be deemed inexpedient the fact still remains that Epworth, like First Church, has outgrown its old clothes and that it too must soon move into better and larger quarters. When Epworth Church builds again it should by all means build farther out than its present location, or else it will soon be weakened by a new society being organized to the west of it and withdrawing a part of its membership. Even though First Church should become the University church and Epworth continue in its present location, the two churches would still be ten blocks apart, a not unreasonable distance even at that. Of course the Epworth people might reason that they would then lose student attendance. The probabilities are that they would be able to retain as much of it as they now have, for the fact of the matter seems to be that none of our Methodist churches have the attendance of the student body in any considerable numbers, owing to the fact that they are scattered among them all. In recognition of the fact that most people identify themselves with church organizations because of family and social considerations rather than otherwise, it is exceedingly doubtful whether Epworth Church would lose anything whatever by the transaction. It is very evident that the University would be profited and that both First and Epworth Churches would also be benefited. It should never be forgotten that as soon as the University is once placed upon a substantial financial basis and is enabled to realize the plans now being laid, that the University upon its own account will attract no less than fifty Methodist families to this city inside of the next five years. In the nature of things First and Epworth Churches will get most of them.

Realizing that the time was opportune and that the interests of the University were of vital importance, it has seemed wise to us to set forth the situation in a fair and impartial manner. We believe that when First Church once carefully considers all the facts involved that they will build near the University. Should they fail to grasp their opportunity then Epworth Church ought not to fail to realize the opportunity forfeited by a sister society. With love for all the churches but with a passion to see the great educational interests of our Washington Methodism promoted to the largest degree, we ask you to think upon these things.

A MEMBER OF THE FACULTY.

R. F. H.

Prof. Cummins' History of Education class turned themselves into a committee of the whole last Friday morning, and listened to a very interesting although informal debate upon the question, Resolved, That a Scientific Course contributes more to a life of culture than does a Classical Course. The debate was held in place of the regular fortnightly test.

The affirmative was upheld by Elizabeth Grieve. Miss Grieve handled her points very well and gave a lively talk. She makes a clever debater.

The negative was given by Mae Starr. Her refutation was good, also. Miss Starr's debate showed some good digging into the subject. She intends to enter the college tryout this month.

A number of clever little local hits were brought in by both sides, in comparing the opinions of our own professors. It required a quick perception and keen appreciation of the situation to twist one professor's opinion so that it would prove the opposite side. It also afforded considerable amusement to the class.

There was a general discussion by the whole class after the appointed speakers had finished their arguments.

This custom of having class debates seems to be spreading. It stimulates interest in the work and, while it means extra effort on the part of the student, it is always well worth while.

VISITING STUDENTS ENTERTAIN AT OYSTER SUPPER.

For the purpose of getting acquainted with students of other schools of the state, the social committees of other Y. W. and Y. M. prepared an oyster supper in our Domestic Science department at 6 p. m. Friday to which fifty visiting delegates were invited. For an hour good fellowship was enjoyed "over the teacups" and at 7 o'clock a parting cheer of thanks was expressed for "Puget Sound" friends and our visitors returned to the city association when the convention, which they were attending, was called to order at 7:30 for the evening program.

TSUNEJIRO CHAMPIONS HON. LADIES.

Editor Daily:

Dear Sir: I notice in your excellent paper an argument greatly for and against ladies' rights to suffrage. There is an interesting subject to think of and discuss it.

I am Japanese young man well educated. While not a student in your worthy university, I am nevertheless employee in a nearby residence and have many Japanese young men my friends in your university. I take dense interest in this controversy.

I beg considerable forgiveness to say I confess ladies' suffrage is a good thing. Why should lady not vote when her weak half does it? They work hard in house and dressmaking and shopping as man works in business. How your Shakespeare says, "Man's work from sun to sun, but lady's work never done?"

Often they possess land, maybe also a house and when they can have but microscopic say about same, what is this? It cannot have any answer!

Lady speaks in her letter of Finland's deaths caused by ladie's votes. I cannot say about this authoritatively, but I think the honorable lady has rat in "her belfry."

Men, we ought to be very edified because ladies now can go to sanctum of liberty and justness and vote. I would like to express praise of good letters in Daily from wide-minded lady and gentleman, thanks.

Yours truly,
TSUNEJIRO INABE.

THE UNIVERSITY OF PUGET SOUND.

Logan school, and proudly stands on the brow of the hill at 21st and South streets. When Tacoma is viewed from a distance, this fine building is one of the two or three most conspicuous objects of the city, as it stands silhouetted against the sky, commanding a magnificent view of the Puyallup valley and environs of Tacoma. Like the lost books of Livy, many have been the laments of the friends of the University over the loss of this splendid building.

From 1892 to 1894 the school was located in the Quimette building, on the northeast corner of South 10th street and Yakima avenue, and from 1894-1903 at South 9th and G streets, except from September, 1898, to March, 1899, when the instruction was given in Portland, Oregon, in connection with the Portland University.

During 1894-1895 instruction was given both in the Quimette building and at 9th and G streets. The following extract from a letter written by Chancellor Thoburn, dated from Tacoma, September 23d, 1898, will throw light on the removal of the school to Portland. "I am glad to inform you that our University next year will be stronger in every respect than it has ever been before. By action of the patronizing conferences we are removed to Portland and the school there is consolidated with us. We have a fine brick building in a beautiful location, easily reached from any part of the city, which is heated by steam and surrounded by a campus provided with every facility for outdoor sports and recreation. The location is especially healthful. Physicians of large practice tell me that they know of no more desirable spot on this account.

"Almost our entire faculty is going down. Professor Cornwall will not be with us, as he has gone to Alaska. A number of the professors from Portland are added to the faculty, all of these being men of experience.

"By special arrangement students of Puget Sound University will have the amount of their railroad fare from Tacoma to Portland deducted from the first year's tuition. The course of study will be the same as here, in a new home."

After the death of Chancellor Thoburn at Portland as already related,

Dr. Wilmot Whitfield was chosen president and the school was reopened at Tacoma at 9th and G streets in March, 1899, where it remained for four years.

President Whitfield retired in 1901, and for the next two years the school was in charge of Deau Palmer, of the chair of ancient languages, and Prof. C. G. Boyer.

The struggle of the University at this time and the heroic fight of its friends are well set forth in the minutes of the Puget Sound Conference for 1900. "Our conference school is having the same experience that has been the lot of nearly all our schools, viz., poverty and hardship. There have been times when it looked as if this cherished institution must yield to the inevitable and be closed. But we are persuaded that Puget Sound University is linked with our life, and is as necessary to our influence as our altars are to our growth, and that few calamities of equal importance could befall us as its discontinuance. Hence we hope that all who have aided in its maintenance in the past will not be weary in well doing, for in due season we shall reap if we faint not."

The Puget Sound Conference of 1901 endorsed the plan providing that Dean Palmer and Prof. Boyer be given the income arising from tuition and room rent, and the conference collection of $1500, in return for which they were to pay the teachers and current expenses. So well was this work done that the conference of 1902 was able to say that for the first time in its history the University had completed a school year without increasing its debt. The conference specially commended "the character, scholarship and business capacity" of Prof. Boyer.

The spring and summer of 1903 marks the transition from the old "Puget Sound University" to the new "University of Puget Sound."

RECOMMEND THE FOLLOWING PRAYER FOR DEMOCRATS

Knowing that the democrats are ever in need of succor from whatever source it may come, the Houston Post commends to them the following prayer, which the republicans in turn advise the democracy of Wyoming, including its cousin, to take with them to their prayer closets:

"O Lord, now that everything is coming our way, purge every democratic soul of hot air and vain glory and insert large installments of common sense in every democratic cranium, and remember, Lord, our proneness to make fools of ourselves just when we have the world by the tail and a down hill pull, and see that we don't get in bad this time."—Laramie Republican.

If plans now on foot at the University of Washington materialize their athletic field will be equipped with arc lights to enable the athletes to do their work late in the afternoon. This will be of great value to the men, enabling them to finish their class and laboratory work and still do the required amount of field work.

The basketball squad had two hours of practice work last Tuesday in the High school gym, with Prof. Fletcher's squad. The work was spirited and snappy at all times. Next week the High school squad is coming out to have a return workout on our floor. The practice showed very clearly that no one in the squad has a cinch on his position. Several men are closely tied for first place and it will be hard to make a choice for guards and forwards. Some of the younger players did better work than the older and more experienced men.

Lack of team work is at present the problem of the squad, but a few weeks of hard practice will remedy this weakness. If the team shows the proper spirit of unity a winning season is practically assured.

The Clarion of the Salem (Oregon) High school has a very pretty cover for its Thanksgiving number. The cuts are especially good. As a whole, the Clarion is one of the heaviest and most attractive magazines of our exchange, both in appearance and material.

The Echo of the University of Chattanooga, although a magazine in appearance, is really a bi-monthly newspaper with a magazine cover. We are pleased to note that they have lately received an endowment of $150,000 with which they expect to erect and equip new buildings.

The Willamette Collegian for November 24 is distinctively a football number. Besides a large write-up it has on the front page large individual pictures of the team and coach.

The Tattler of the El Paso (Texas) high school has very good material and lots of it, both stories and verse, and it is also well arranged.

The Student of the Detroit (Michigan) Central High school is one of the largest of the high school magazines we receive. From the tri-color cut on the cover to the photographs of the football team in the back of the magazine, the material and cuts are the very best quality, but are not ten pages of jokes rather out of proportion unless you are putting out a "joke number?"

The University of Oregon contemplates putting out a new publication in the near future, the object of which is solely to print the reports of research work in the various departments.

The University of Washington has awarded two official "W's" to two co-ed athletes. This is the first instance of young women receiving such honors in that institution.

Co-eds can receive the coveted letters by participating for three consecutive seasons in hockey, basketball, tennis, handball, or baseball.

The faculty of the University of Utah have abolished the Senior's having to write a thesis.

Columbia University has today a greater number of students than any other educational institution in the United States.

One-twentieth of the registered students at the University of Pennsylvania are from foreign countries.

The University of Washington opened this week a new department, namely the Department of Home Economics. The laboratory contains every possible convenience and is fitted out with all the latest inventions of that line.

The census bureau announced this week that the population of Seattle is 237,194 and Portland 207,214.

The football scores which ended the season, were:

University of Pennsylvania 12, Cornell University 6.

University of Washington 22, O. A. C. 0.

University of Kansas 5, University of Missouri 0.

Washington State College 8, Whitman College 0.

Multnomah Athletic Club 5, University of Oregon 0.

Fort Worden 23, Vancouver Barracks 0.

Annapolic Naval Academy 3, West Point Academy 0.

Lincoln High School 0, Spokane High School 0.

Queen Anne High 12, Tacoma High 5.
