'Journey's End' In Final Weeks Of Rehearsals

All-Male Cast with Unusual Stage Settings Feature Spring Production

By Gladys Neff

With the presentation of "Journey's End" only two weeks away, February 23 and 24, final rehearsals are beginning for the all-male cast.

The CPS band, under the direction of Prof. Homer H. Truitt, has selected war tunes to play before the initial curtain and between acts. A fifteen minute concert will precede the play on both evenings.

Shift in Cast

Some changes have occurred in the group of players. Ed House has been transferred to the role of Mason, the comic cook, and Warren Mahaffay will play the happy-go-lucky Captain Hardy. Harwood Bannister is the Colonel and Bob Carlyle will appear as a soldier.

Costuming will be similar to the English uniforms used during the war. Colin Keith-Johnson, who had the part of Stanhope in London, wore the same uniform in which he was shot down on a French battlefield. Last week all members of the college cast had their pictures taken in uniform.

Follow Tradition

Carrying out a tradition of "Journey's End," the setting will be the same as has always been used wherever the play has been given. The scene is a stuffy dugout furnished with a table, boxes for seats, rude bunks and military equipment with candles giving the only light.

Reserved seats will be available Wednesday.

Subject of Speech Is World Travel

Seattle Attorney Talks on Temperance

Ralph Johnson, son of Dr. C. Oscar Johnson, former pastor of the First Baptist church, spoke in chapel Wednesday about the students he encountered in the colleges he visited in Hawaii, Japan, China and Germany.

Johnson found that the students he met on his 15 months' tour of the world were not much different from the students he found at home. He also found that the professors elsewhere have the same problems as American professors when it comes to students studying.

Matthew W. Hill, Seattle attorney and former president of U of W alumni, addressed the student body on behalf of the Scientific Temperance Foundation in chapel Friday. Stating that the greatest danger on the highway is not the drunken driver but the occasional drinker who is rendered incapable of responding to an emergency soon enough. Mr. Hill said that alcohol should be considered a narcotic rather than a stimulant.

Bursar Talks on KMO

The weekly CPS program over radio station KMO will be given by the Spanish club. Charles A. Robbins, bursar, will speak on the "Scope of the Spanish Language." Mrs. Charles T. Battin will sing and other club members will participate in the program to be arranged by Carl McConnell, president. The broadcast is scheduled for 9 p. m.

Your Business

It is with pleasure that the President and Faculty welcome you students to your places of business for the second semester. Yes, this is the time, and the College is the place for you to get that intellectual capital with which to enrich your lives.

Truth is the coin of the intellectual realm. The time of getting established facts and truths by those who are of student age is now. Some will hoard them; some will trade with them; and others may throw them away. If the youth of today are to be free men and women tomorrow, the possession and use of truth are absolutely necessary.

Many methods are used in securing this education, they are of varied values. Extra-curricular activities are among these methods. But methods, even though they be good, do not take the place of substance.

Let none of us get into position of the Iowa farmer whose wagon was stuck in a mud hole. As he looked at his worn and helpless horses, he said, "Here I am, stuck in the mud, and nothing to unload." The true business man will get into many a tight place, but if he is educated he will have something to unload.

Welcome, then, to the business of getting an education. It is a spiritual enterprise. It has wide fields in which you may roam. Truth lurks everywhere. Let us enjoy together the fun of hunting it, capturing it, taming it and making it our servant. If you do, God and men will trade with you to the profit of all concerned.

Again, welcome! Thrice welcome to the halls of CPS!

EDWARD H. TODD, President.

Trustees Defer Government Aid

Administration Lays Plans For Local Help System

The government aid plan for college students recently outlined from Washington, D. C., has not yet been accepted by the Executive Committee of the College as stated. However Dr. N. D. Showalter, state superintendent of public instruction, has called a meeting of executives of all colleges of the state for Wednesday, February 14, to consider the plan.

The government program was considered at a special meeting of the CPS executives Friday. They declined to accept the plan, feeling that it would be a detriment to the College. In this action concerning the government plan, CPS is acting with other schools of the state. In the meantime, the Executive Committee has authorized President Edward H. Todd and Bursar Charles A. Robbins to formulate a plan for student aid at CPS.

The individual plan being worked out for needy CPS students by President Todd and Bursar Robbins is an attempt to aid students who cannot stay in school without assistance. The College will try to furnish work sufficient to make up the balance of fees which these students need. This aid is only for those students who without help must leave school.

Prof. Slater Selected As Fellow of AAAS

A letter announcing that he had been chosen a Fellow in the American Association for the Advancement of Science, was recently received by Prof. J. R. Slater. The AAAS is the leading scientific society in the United States.

Election is made through the executive committee and is based on outstanding research, teaching, or articles published in a field of science. Professor Slater has done work in each of these phases. He has published several short articles recently in the Copeia Magazine, a scientific journal.

Evangelist Advises General Education As Basis for Life

By Mary Ann Caughran

"Come up and shake hands with me, everybody!" Aimee Semple McPherson, in a long white silk gown, with scarlet lined cape and sleeves, a scarlet cross hung about her neck, extended her hands to the crowd that thronged to greet her.

"Gee," I thought, "by the time that mob gets through with her, she'll be so tired she'll probably throw her pretty white leather Bible at me." But I was determined to get my interview so I gritted my teeth and watched her yellow hair gleam in the light as she listened patiently to a little old woman who had heard her preach at Angelus Temple and smiled at another who knew someone she had known.

Finally the last one turned away and I reached up and caught her hand. "Mrs. McPherson," I gulped, "would you give me an interview for our college paper?"

Grants Interview

"Gladly," she said kindly and stooped down on the edge of the platform beside me, "what would you like to know?"

"My greatest achievement?" the answer came without a second's pause. "Preaching the Gospel, then, perhaps, the building of the Angelus Temple and my work with the poor. If I were to go back to school," Mrs. McPherson, who was a missionary's wife in China at nineteen, continued, "I would take a good general course and learn about as many different things as I could. I think colleges are very worthwhile, especially if the student can go through them and still retain his faith. My advice to a graduate just entering life is to get a good education and sound religious training and stand on them."

Rejects Evolution

"And I'd like to say that I will never give in to evolution until they can absolutely prove the origin of matter, the origin of life, and the origin of the species. Moreover, the theory is being discarded in England as dangerous. If we can't teach Genesis in the schools I maintain that they have no right to teach evolution!"

Board Appoints New ASCPS Secretary

Betty Smallridge, junior, has taken over the office of secretary of the Associated Students since Mrs. Lee Kress, former secretary, has not returned to school this semester. Miss Smallridge is the president of Delta Alpha Gamma sorority. The appointment was made by William Le Veque, president of ASCPS, and approved by Central Board.

Hanawalts Give Books to Library

Late Professor's Sons Present Over 1,000 Volumes

Paul and Harold Hanawalt, sons of the late Prof. Francis Wayland Hanawalt, professor of mathematics for 25 years in the College of Puget Sound and professor emeritus in 1933, who died November 21, 1933, have presented their father's collection of books and periodicals to the college library.

Professor Hanawalt had a life long interest in the preservation of printed materials. As professor of mathematics and astronomy in this and other colleges he built up a large collection of books, periodicals and documents relating to his special interests. The library will receive more than a thousand bound volumes, and many valuable and useful files of scientific periodicals.

Warren Perry, librarian, states that one great contribution will be the nearly complete collection of student publications of the college: The Puget Sound Trail and its predecessors, The Maroon and The Record. The sorting of Professor Hanawalt's library completely will take approximately a year.

Biology Museum Additions Made

With several recent additions, the biology museum is fast becoming more and more complete. Leo K. Couch of the Biological Survey in the State of Washington donated two beavers, one beaver skull and one beaver skin. The Tacoma Park board presented a golden eagle, which was prepared by Gordon Alcorn, former CPS professor, and a fox, prepared by Murray Johnson, junior.

Mr. Couch made very favorable comments upon the skull exhibit now being displayed in Howarth Hall. The Biology club visited Eatonville Saturday to study the river bed.

Hound Persists In Futile Search

Nothing but an ornery yellow cur with a shaggy coat and apologetic eyes, but in him is a persistence to get what he wants in spite of all obstacles, that would do justice to a Horatio Alger's hero.

Removed, gently but firmly, once from the library where the presence of a dog interrupted contemplation on the serious side of life, with a timid, ingratiating manner, Fido (if that wasn't his name it should have been) investigated the open windows and, with the supreme daring only found in the excessively timid, ventured onto the top of the bookshelves below. The roar of laughter that greeted him was too much and he fled precipitously but reappeared a few minutes later in the library and as the reward due to a honest, stubborn soul searched it thoroughly until he was satisfied that his master's feet were not among those present.

Plan Patrons' And Founders' Day Celebration

Awarding of Honorary Degrees, Dedication of Bell Form Program

At the regular Patrons' and Founders' Day ceremonies to be held next Tuesday, February 20, honorary degrees will be awarded to new members of the Order of Patrons and Founders of CPS and the recently acquired Brown's Point Lighthouse bell will be formally dedicated.

Men receiving degrees are those who have been selected as members of the honorary order by the Board of Trustees of the College. They are chosen on the basis of their valuable leadership and service to the institution.

An interesting ceremony will mark the dedication of the new bell. R. R. Tinkham, Supervisor of Lighthouses in this district will speak on "The Lighthouse Service in the United States." Then Mr. Tinkham will formally deliver the bell to the school. O. V. Brown, Lighthouse tender at Brown's Point Lighthouse for the last 30 years, will give a short history of the bell, after which he will formally dedicate it to its new use. Then the bell will be struck so that every one may hear the sound of the instrument.

So that every one may attend this ceremony, chapel attendance at about 11:15 a. m. will be required on Tuesday. This will be substituted for some other regular chapel. The attempt will be made to include everyone on the program, to have students, faculty and trustees of the College represented.

Forensic Squad Enters Contest

12 Puget Sound Representatives in Linfield Tourney

To attend the annual invitational debate tournament on Friday and Saturday at McMinnville, Oregon, sponsored by the Linfield college chapter of Pi Kappa Delta, the following 12 members of the CPS forensic squad will leave Thursday noon: Frank Heuston, Charles Thomas, Arthur Linn, Charles Zittle, Jack Leik, Harwood Bannister, Jeanette Amidon, Ora Willmott, Olive Whorley, Maurine Henderson, Lora Bryning and Jane Ramsby. Heuston, Bannister and Misses Amidon and Henderson will enter oratory and Linn, Leik and Misses Willmott and Bryning will compete in extemporaneous speaking. About 25 colleges of Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Utah, and California are entering teams in this tournament.

Two non-decision debates between the Freshman teams of the University of Washington and CPS were held last Thursday. Misses Whorley and Bryning, upholding the affirmative, met a men's team here, while the negative team, Herman Estes and Boyd Dickinson went to Seattle.

Miss Willmott, Heuston, Leik, all varsity debaters, have been judging debates, between high school teams in the vicinity.

"The Chemistry of Common Things" was the subject of Prof. G. F. Henry's lecture to the members of the Puget Sound Academy of Science at their regular meeting Wednesday, February 7.

Whitman Cops Pair From CPS In Cage League

First Game Goes to Three Overtime Periods; Bates, Stoffel Star

CPS hoopsters dropped both games of the annual two-game series with the Whitman Missionaries, which was played last Monday and Tuesday on the Logger's court. The double loss to the Missionaries, practically put Coach Roy Sandberg's five out of the running for the conference title.

Monday's Game Close

Monday's game, which was by far the best, was won by Whitman by a score of 47 to 45 in the third overtime period. Whitman took the lead at the start of the contest but near the half way mark Otto Smith and Capt. Stan Bates began sinking shots from midfloor, and the half ended with each team having 15 points. Play was fast and furious throughout the second half, with the lead changing from one team to the other and at the end of the regular playing time, the score was knotted at 32 all. A long shot by Carpenter, Missionary guard in the last five seconds of the third over time period, proved to be the margin of victory.

Whitman took the second game of the series on Tuesday winning handily 50 to 26. The Loggers made the game a real battle the first half, but the Missionaries opened up in the last period with some accurate shooting from all parts of the floor. Carpenter was again a leading figure in the visitors attack, scoring 12 points and playing a brilliant defensive game.

Bates, Stoffel Star

Bates and Vaughn Stoffel led the Lumberjack's attack in the second game, each garnering 10 points. Bates was also highest scorer for the series with 25 counters while Carpenter and Percy Irving with 21 and 20 points, were the leading scorers for Coach Nig Borleske's quintet.

In a preliminary game to Tuesday's contest the Washington Hardware team of the Tacoma City league trounced the Alpha Chi Nu fraternity five 37 to 17.

Managers, Golfers Meet

If there are any women who can play golf and wish to take lessons or just play, Miss Pernina Collins would like to see them today or tomorrow. All sorority basketball managers are requested to attend a meeting tomorrow at noon in Miss Collins' office.

Frosh Defeat Sophs In Coed Basketball

Schedule

Monday—February 12: Junior vs. Freshmen.

Wednesday, February 14: Senior vs. Sophomore.

Friday, February 16: Sophomore Firsts vs. Sophomore Seconds; Freshman Firsts vs. Freshman Seconds.

Monday, February 19: Senior vs. Freshmen.

Wednesday, February 21: Junior vs. Sophomore.

With three games played, the womens' basketball tournament started successfully last week. In the opening game, the seniors defeated the handicapped junior squad, 30 to 8. Dora Langton, senior captain, was high scorer with 18 points. Because of lack of junior players, subs from the lower classes filled in the vacancies.

Friday the freshmen squad defeated the sophomores 16 to 14. The game was close except in the third quarter when the freshmen pulled away, 16 to 8. The second team freshmen tied the second team sophomore squad, 12 to 12.

Logger Chips

By Howie Clifford

The intramural basketball schedule got under way last Tuesday before a large crowd, with the Delta Pi Omicron outfit downing the defending champions, Sigma Zeta Epsilon. Although this game was exciting those who stayed to view the second contest saw a real battle when the "Terrible Swedes" came from behind to win over the Sigma Mu Chi. And don't forget that this week will see more exciting contests. That Chi Nu-Omicron struggle should be a pip as well as the Zete-Swede game. Be in the gym every Tuesday and Thursday noon if you enjoy real basketball.

Puget Sound track aspirations were given a real boost when the local papers printed stories of Bert Meier, state 440 title-holder, entering CPS. Since this was a false alarm it looks as if the Loggers will really have to get down to work this year if they expect to repeat last year's victory.

Those big athletic brutes who have as their major sport the ancient game of ping pong will be given a chance to strut their stuff within the next few weeks with the announcement that the intramural department will sponsor a singles tournament open to all men of the college. All interested are asked to sign up on the bulletin board this week.

Omicrons Upset Zetes in Mural Casaba Opener

Chi Nus, Omicrons and 'Swedes' Top List in First Week's Play

In their first attempt in defending the intramural basketball trophy the Sigma Zeta Epsilon quintet met defeat at the hands of the Delta Pi Omicron five, 22 to 16, Tuesday afternoon in the opening battle of the 1934 campaign. In the other contest the "The Terrible Swedes," an independent hoop team, downed the Sigma Mu Chi five in a close contest, 27 to 23.

First Loss in Many Years

The defeat of the Zetes by the Omicrons was the first administered to them in the last six years of intramural competition and finds the Omicrons strong contenders to replace the defending champions in the race for this year's title.

In Tuesday's game both teams battled on even terms during the first half with the winners leading 7 to 6 at halftime. During the last canto the Zetes tired and the Omicrons retained their fighting pace to step out in front with victory. Burdette Sterling was the outstanding ball player on the floor collecting 11 points for the Omicrons. Burns also showed to advantage for the winners. In the Zete camp Jimmy Ennis with six tallies led his cohorts while Gene Millikan played a good defensive game.

Swedes Win

In the second contest the Mu Chis held the lead throughout the contest until the dying minutes of the conflict only to be outclassed by "Swedes" and drop the fracas by a 27 to 23 count. The losers led at halftime 17 to 12.

Alpha Chi Nu Wins

The Alpha Chi Nu's quintet was too much for the Peter Pugets who fell before their onslaught 31 to 12 Thursday afternoon in the initial intramural hoop contest for both teams. Jumping into an early game lead the Chi Nu outfit was never in danger, leading 19 to 5 at halftime. Jim Montgomerie took scoring honors by collecting ten counters. He was closely followed by two teammates, Bernie Brotman and Bill Gibson with eight and nine counters respectively. Johnson was outstanding for the Peter Pugets.

Zetes Take Delta Kapps

In the second game the Sigma Zeta Epsilon came through with a victory over the Delta Kappa Phi cagers by a score of 27 to 16. The contest started slow with the Zetes holding a 10-6 lead at halftime but increased it to 21-14. Zehnder and Millikan lead the offense for the winners with Leuenberger playing a bang-up defensive game. For the Delta Kapps, Sherman and Zittle were the highlights, both offensively and defensively.

Mike Pecarovich heads the coaching staff of his former alma mater and has shown a winning record in his three years of coaching at the Bulldog school. Gonzaga is not a member of any conference, but is considered one of the strongest independent school football teams in the country and the game will be the highlight of the Logger's home schedule.

Montana, CPS Each Take Tilt In Hoop Series

Captain Stan Bates Is High Point Man in Series With Grizzlies

CPS basketeers evened a two-game series with the Montana Grizzlies when they scored a hard fought 42-39 victory Thursday evening on the Logger floor. The first game of the series was dropped by a 40-34 score, marking the third loss in as many games, but the CPS quint redeemed itself by the sparkling play dished out in Thursday's tilt.

'Blows Own Horn'

Vaughn Stoffel showed that he believed in that moth eaten adage "blow your own horn" when with but 45 seconds of play remaining in the first half, he seized the scorer's tooter, gave a mighty toot and went in to drop three field goals and give the Loggers a 22-21 margin at the half.

Taking the play into their own hands, the CPS maple men forged ahead in the early part of the second half. However, a strong Montana rally brought the count up to 40-39 in the closing minutes of play. Stan Bates then dropped a field goal and Otto Smith added a foul shot for the final scores of the game.

Stoffel and Bates lead in the scoring with 12 points each while Smith followed them with 10.

Wednesday's Game Is Close

The game Wednesday evening was closely contested all the way, the deciding factor being the Montana team's ability to work in short shots. The lead changed hands several times during the game, but the Loggers could not escape a bugaboo in the shape of a five-point lead that the Grizzlies usually managed to retain.

Captain Stan Bates lead the Logger scoring by a wide margin with his 18 points. Lindquist kept up his good work in the back court, ably assisted by George Pollock.

The 'Dead' Arise

Congratulations are due those who successfully handled and to all who attended the Independents' party last Friday evening. Approximately 100 of the non-sorority and non-fraternity group attended the function, which was held in the gymnasium. From the enthusiasm displayed at the party it is certain that many more equally successful ventures of the social type will be undertaken by the independent group of the College.

It is proper that this group should take part in the social life, which is a part of one's education, and that its influence and presence should be felt by the rest of the student body. When one stops to consider the matter as it stands, this group pays in almost one-half of the student body fees that are received, and should receive its share of benefits from college. It should be understood that it is not the fault of the sororities, fraternities or the college that the Independents have been dormant but of the group itself because of lack of organization.

It should not be the purpose of the group to attempt to control CPS politics but to organize in such a manner that through group endeavor the full benefit of college might be received and a just influence exerted on student body affairs.

My Name?

"They named me Leonard Howarth Hall of Science but they call me Science Hall." If the building which houses the science department could speak, these words would no doubt come forth in plaintive notes. That fine building which was made possible by the contribution of a Tacoma citizen who had the interest of the community at heart would be justified in making such an utterance.

No doubt the college realizes who made the building possible but students who come and go sometimes never realize what the late Mr. Howarth has done for this school. Why not call it Howarth Hall when announcements are made that are connected with the building? A little activity such as this would bring the name of the donor on the lips of the students and as a result a fuller appreciation of the gift will be possible.

The aim of this suggestion is not to cover up the fact that this building houses the science department or to discontinue a policy of keeping students informed about this fact. Think of it as the science building and be proud that we have a fine science department housed in such a edifice, but when you refer to it in announcements call it Howarth Hall or if you want to be exact, Leonard Howarth Hall of Science.

And now, usher, if you will please sew the ladies to their sheets, we'll begin to expostulate.

We're in classes full of girls
With paint jobs bright and new,
Some stream-lined sporty models
And then some old one's too.

But if we keep admiring
Their smoothness, ease and grace,
We're going to come out way behind
In this great college race.

With Apologies To Paul Kohler
We've finally got all signed up
But business sure was bad
'Cause we couldn't get a darn thing
That Agnes Archer had.

Then there was the surgeon who was always cutting fancy figures.

Ben Westerland: "Did you hear about the mysterious case of Chicken Pox?"

Jean Beers: "No, tell me about it."
B. W.: "It doesn't matter, you wouldn't get it anyway."

Bob Sharp calls his girl "Radiator" because she is always a lot of trouble, boils over a lot, half cracked, and costs a lot of time and money to keep her from freezing up on him.

"Do you have venison often?"
"No, it's too dear."

Did you know that Jack Morlock fell in a sewer the other day and was arrested for "fragrancy"?

The late Betty Fox: "These are my first biscuits, dear."
Married Martyr: "I believe you."

"Is my fez red?" said the Hindu.

Evangelist Gives Advice (Continued From Page 1)

Mrs. McPherson was reared on a farm in Canada and attended the schools there and at that time she considered herself a rabid atheist. She was converted at an evangelistic meeting held by Robert Semple and later married him, immediately leaving for China. Mr. Semple died of the fever within a year, leaving her with $5.40. That night she received a letter from home containing $65. Later she returned to the U. S. with her baby daughter and a strong resolve to preach. Her first service was washing dishes at a conference, later she played the piano and lead the choir in evangelistic meetings.

One day the preacher lost his voice and she took over his meeting. At her first real meeting she had an audience of two. Taking a chair she went out on a street corner and stood with uplifted arms and closed eyes in an attitude of prayer. Within five minutes she was surrounded by a milling crowd which she quickly led into her church. With characteristic resolve and quick action, Mrs. McPherson has established herself as a world-famous evangelist and has built Angelus Temple, many churches and supports many foreign missions.

The following boners were recorded by the Springfield Student as happening there: "Matrimony is a place where souls suffer for a time because of their sins. A skeleton is a man with his insides taken out and the outsides taken off. The prairies are vast plains covered with treeless forests." Many more clever ones may be had by consulting some CPS instructors about the last exams.

German Professor Speaks in Southwest

To speak at the Methodist Brotherhood, Dr. Warren E. Tomlinson was called to Centralia today. Facts and unique features of the church strife in Germany at the present time were to be discussed by Dr. Tomlinson.

Going to Longview on Saturday, February 10, Dr. Tomlinson spoke to the American Association of University Women. The meeting, held in the Methodist church, had for its theme "Germany." Dr. Tomlinson addressed the group on "German Culture" with a few remarks on the political events now taking place.

YW Members Enjoy Puppet Performance

Transforming a corner of the Lambda Sigma Chi room into a puppet theater, Miss Elizabeth Wainwright presented four of her animated grotesqueries at YWCA meeting Tuesday. Miss Geraldine McClelland assisted.

Charlie, a red-and-white clown, introduced the other puppets, who performed to music of a toy gramophone. Tap dancing by Black Harlequin and a coy Chinese dance by Lulu Mae "Sweet-smelling Flower" were followed by a flying trapeze act by Barnacle Bill the Sailor.

Miss Wainwright has an exhibit of puppets on display at the University of Washington and her plays have been given for several Tacoma groups. The chairman of this meeting was Miss Helen Howe.

New Books

As Seen by a Layman

By Milt Woodard

Those of you who sang the song or viewed the picture, don't think that Max Miller's book, "I Cover the Water Front" carries the meaningless lines of the song or the obnoxious plot of the motion picture version.

On the contrary there is more meaning wrapped up in the comparatively few pages of "I Cover the Water-front" than there is in most books double its size. And as for a plot, there is none. It's a clever, intensely interesting chronicle of the author's escapades while a waterfront reporter for the San Diego Sun.

Miller is a modern philosopher—a philosopher so modern that one is not certain of the fact until he rereads "I Cover the Waterfront" or goes into his second book, "He Went Away for Awhile." Just as modern as his philosophy is his individualistic way of writing—writing that has escorted him to the position as one of the day's outstanding figures in the literary realm.

You'll want to reread "I Cover the Waterfront" just as soon as you have completed it. What more can be said? It's a book the light-minded can read for the sheer entertainment it gives, it's a book the literary stylists, the students of philosophy and our so-called heavy thinkers can delve into and come out highly enriched in their respective lines.

This book is included in the many fine fiction and non-fiction offerings of the College of Puget Sound library.

Dramatic Review

Eva La Gallienne, the famous New York actress who has given to New York the most distinguished repertory theatre of the English-speaking world, appeared at the Metropolitan Theatre in Seattle last week. It was my privilege to see Eva La Gallienne and her company present Ibsen's "Hedda Gabler."

"Hedda is about twenty-nine. She is a woman of breeding and distinction. Her complexion is pale and opaque—her eyes, steel grey, express a cold, unruffled repose. Her hair is an agreeable medium brown, not particularly abundant. She is dressed tastefully in a somewhat loose-fitting morning gown."—Hendrik Ibsen.

Miss Le Gallienne's first appearance in the play attempted to follow the above description.

One of the outstanding features of her acting, was her complete naturalness and ease on the stage. Absolutely unconscious of her audience, Miss Gallienne's movements of hands, arms and body were interesting to watch. Many of her scenes were played with her back to the audience, and yet because of fine diction and voice the thoughts were impressively carried to the spectator.

Miss Gallienne is a dynamic personality, far from beautiful with few traces of youth. Her characterization of Hedda Gabler from beginning to end was filled with strength and power, a characterization which called for no sympathy and received none.

The play, although tragic in theme was not tragic as seen presented. Miss La Gallienne made the characterization of Hedda Gabler so cruel, so unsympathetic to the audience that instead of being filled with horror at the end when Hedda Gabler shoots herself, the spectator felt a relief and that justice had been done.

I was more impressed with the acting of Paul Leysac than of the star. Mr. Leysac played the part of George Tesman, the husband of Hedda Gabler, using artistic restraint and feeling throughout the play. Ibsen to me breathed in his characterization of George Tesman. The stage set was far from artistic. The costuming was very inconsistent, period coats were worn with modern dress. Men followed period dress, and some of the women modern.

—Ruth Moline.
