Choose Sixteen Men For Cast Of 'Last Mile'

To Present Prison Drama Here on May 8; No Women in Play

Selection of the cast of 16 men for "The Last Mile," to be presented by the College dramatics art department Friday, May 8, was made last Thursday by Martha Pearl Jones, dramatic instructor, and Franklin Larson, dramatics manager. The play, written by John Wexley, was named by metropolitan critics as being one of the ten best plays of 1930, the year in which it first appeared.

"The Last Mile" is the tense, emotional tragedy of condemned men in the death row of an eastern prison. An unusual feature of the play is that there are no women in the cast. As announced by Miss Jones, the cast will be: Mears, a convict, Franklin Larson; Walters, a convict, Gordon Tuell; Mayor, a convict, Dean Tuell; Kirby, a convict, Art Linn; Jackson, a convict, Clayton Lupton; Werner, a convict, Bob Byrd; Drake, a guard, Ned Cowles; O'Flaherty, a guard, Bud Galbraith; Peddie, a guard, Ralph Benson; Callahan, principal keeper, Norm Runions; Harris, a guard, Glenn Eaken; D'Amoro, a convict, Bob Brandt; Father O'Connors, Neil Richardson; Evangelist, Bill Orr; Frost, a reporter, Eldon Anderson; Brooks, a reporter, Dick Dews.

Jean Hartman, president, explained that three girls are chosen from each sorority and three from the independents at the end of their freshman year. 1936 Summer Session Planned

Elementary Education Specialist Again on Staff

Miss Eleanor Troxell, one of the important elementary education specialists of the United States, will return this year to the teaching staff for the College summer season because of the insistent demand of former students, according to Dean Raymond G. Drewry, director.

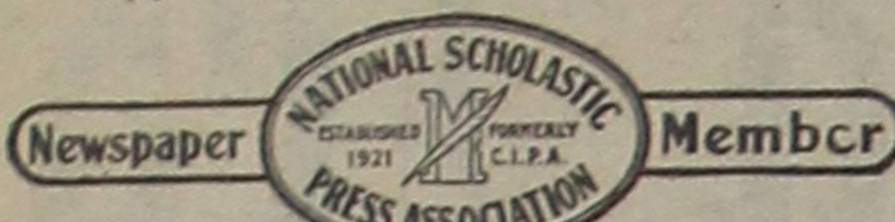

Special courses are to be offered this year to meet the requirements of the state teachers' certificate stating that teachers must have 120 hours plus an additional 20 hours, Dean Drewry stated. These may be earned in four semesters and two summer sessions.

Besides this high school teacher training, students may take courses providing special credentials for positions as principals in elementary, junior and senior high schools, and as superintendents.

A maximum of 12 semester hours may be earned in the summer. Students may attend the full 11 weeks or either of the first or second terms of 5½ weeks. Regular subjects are offered corresponding to those of the long term.

Ten thousand bulletins advertising this year's summer session at the College have been sent to teachers in the Washington public schools as well as others interested.

Our 1938 Campus

Another Campus day approaches and we should look at our campus. In 1938 the administration, the trustees, founders, patrons, students and alumni will unite to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the institution which is now the College of Puget Sound.

In spite of protests, the unsightly pipes are in plain view of Lawrence boulevard. The shade trees in back of the college are still waiting to be transplanted in front. The center strip on Lawrence could easily be planted with shade trees if some one were assigned the task. The shrubs which have not grown since they were planted are a disgrace. If it were impossible to obtain choice trees, madronas and firs could be transplanted successfully if ordinary care were taken.

Campus day is one day when administration foresight and student brawn can cooperate to give the college a progressive start toward beautification.

Let's see a definite move to do something in this direction April 30.

The Third Strike For Peace

Anti-War Strike. Though the American Student Union is not officially represented at the College of Puget Sound, its call to the third annual student strike against war should not go unheeded. The date for this year is to be April 22—later than formerly to avoid conflict with the Easter vacation periods.

The passing by the United States Senate of the unprecedented military budget has heightened interest in the strike, which will dramatize student sentiment against war as a method of international intercourse. It is announced that a special appeal will be addressed to college presidents urging their cooperation in the peace demonstration. The strike is solemn and forceful way of expressing students' insistence on peace."

Veterans of Future Wars

The Veterans of Future Wars have been both scored and commended. By far the best interpretation or digest of the organization is found in the editorial from the College of Idaho "Coyote" and follows in part:

"While being the most elaborate and the best satire to date on the money-grabbing activities of the various veterans' organizations, the student movement carries a deeper significance. It is said that the youth of a country are the hardest to fool, and this act bears out the old saw for once. America suffers today from two things, namely: (1) An anything or nothing complex which leads the common people to take up with will-o-the-wisp ideas and to follow unscrupulous politicians into an organized grab at the U. S. Treasury and, (2) The attitude of regarding the government as Omniscent.

In short, they look to the government as God when in reality they are the government themselves. When the nation gets over looking around for some easy way out of the current dilemma and realizes that the only equitable and reasonable way is one which will call for real sacrifice and the giving up of some of the things they look upon as certain inalienable, God-given rights, we may rise from this morass of difficulty.

We, as students, must find that way. We and our brethren in the other institutions of higher learning are the government of tomorrow. In order to find the right road let us forget the fallacies which delude our oldsters, and hew to the line until we find the answer. There is nothing to be gained in following demagogues and the unscrupulous leaders of selfish minorities. The only thing that will keep this generation from being great is the fear of being great. Let us then forget these fallacies that seem to govern the thought of today and realize once and for all that when we get something we must pay for it!"

Ah! Spring at last! . . . the days are getting longer and the skies are getting sunnier and sunnier . . . shoes are getting whiter and gal's hats are getting funnier and funnier . . . Yeah! Yeah! Spring is in the air!

The First Touch of Spring . . . Chuck Zittel, still dazed from the arrival of Spring, wants to celebrate the time of year by bringing all his cows to school and sell fresh milk to students so he can balance the ASCPS budget. Ah! the Moo Deal! . . . Ellis Wood, Stadium Hi senior girl, has a past, present, and future here on our home grounds. Ronald Whitley is her past. Chuck Fischel is her present and Norm Mayer wants to be her future . . . Add Definitions: Hiccup—part of a popular song, "Hiccup the British" . . . Bob Sharp's affair with Phylis Syverson is turning from a two-some into a triangle. Valen Honeywell is the fly in the soup.

The Birds and the Bees . . . Speaking voice most pleasant to the ear: that of John Hazen's . . . Puget Sound's Miss Neatness: Helen Stalwick . . . Dixie Tuck is NOT going to India. Instead she will take graduate work at the University of Washington. The reason for this sudden change in plans, mah frans, is due to the fact that although Dixie's eyes do not bother her, they do bother Herbie Edwards and, of course—well, I mean—er—after all, what's so nice about going to school way over there in India away from everybody and everything—the U. of W. graduate school is every bit as good as any college in India and well, you know, there's no use being silly about it, is there, Dixie? . . . That item, however, does not, by any chance, leave Mary Ellen Simmons without a boy friend. Ed "Quick to act" Burkland has taken up where Herbie Edwards left off!

Lovely Weather We're Having . . . a kickintheponce to Don Kruzner for not cleaning those garbage cans he messed up with his campaign publicity. What an unpretty campus this would be if ALL the candidates who ran for ASCPS offices left their names laying around for months and months AFTER elections . . . Add Similes: as careful as a nudist crossing a barbed wire fence . . . This department is usually prejudiced against women writers but for those of you who like to read, we recommend "The Exile" by Pearl Buck. Real choice stuff with just the right amount . . . Sewing Circle Flash: Marc Miller is the only boy enrolled in Miss Stevens' clothing classes . . . Things To Come: the Theta Trio will make its first all-College appearance in student chapel this Thursday.

On the Stage . . . Everytime Helen May has stood on that stage in the auditorium she's scored a direct hit whether she sang a song or acted in a play. If her next effort is as good as last Thursday's, she'll probably be pursued by autograph fiends . . . Speaking of dramatics, it would be a great idea to have a dramatic exchange between colleges. Casts work for weeks to produce a play and then present it only one or two nights. After a play has had its premiere on our stage why not give it again at some of the other colleges? They, in turn, could come here and give us a sample of their kind of dramatics.

Secretary, Take a Letter . . . Larry Penberthy: Why did you want the ASCPS to install a student telephone? There's been one in the Trail office all the time! . . . Analie Duncan: I wish you luck in editing the freshman edition of the Trail next week. Here's a little tip: your readers must be treated like women—to get along with 'em you have to tell them absolutely nothing but what they like to hear . . . Jack Green: So you're wearing you're fraternity pin again. A free man, eh? Well, you're not the only one—the way people are "breaking up" around here lately, it looks as if in the spring time a young person's fancy turns to thoughts of love—for somebody else! . . . Clarence Mykland: Is there any truth to the rumor that you go to the wrestling matches every Monday nite to learn all those new dance steps of yours? . . . Adelphian Choral Society: Bon Voyage when you leave on your tour this Thursday. But why aren't we given a chance to hear you before you leave. As a matter of fact, why haven't we been hearing you every now and then, throughout the year. Why keep such a swell organization in hiding all year?

Whorley, Bryning High In Forensic Rankings

At the eleventh annual national convention of Pi Kappa Delta held in Houston, Texas, March 30 to April 6, Olive Whorley, representing CPS in women's oratory placed eighth out of 124 contestants. The new campus group for peace action started a few weeks ago will meet tomorrow, Tuesday, April 14, in room 111, during chapel period. All members of the original group and others interested in peace problems are urged to be present.

Inaugurate New A. S. B. Officers

Maurice Webster, president-elect of the associated students, was formally sworn into his new post and delivered the gavel of his executive authority by Bursar Charles A. Robbins during the inaugural ceremonies Friday morning.

The installation proceedings opened with ex-President Charles Zittel in charge, who summarized the events of the past year and called attention to the projects carried over into the next. Through Bursar Robbins, he turned the meeting over to President Webster.

Herb Edwards, past senior representative to the Central board, presented a ring from the Associated Students to the past president in token of his "capable and conscientious work while in the executive chair."

Support League Says Miss Nivens

A plea for faith in the League of Nations as a force for the betterment of the world, was voiced by Miss Charlotte P. Niven, international executive of the YWCA, during her talk before the Monday general assembly. Referring to her former position at Geneva, Switzerland, where for 15 years she was general secretary of the world's council of YWCA, Miss Niven declared that her parish consisted of some 52 countries. Since her home office was in the same city as the League headquarters, she said, she came into direct contact with its work and membership.

Citing a number of instances in which the League has been successful, Miss Niven said that these achievements missed the wide publicity of some of the seeming failures of the league, not because of lesser importance of effect, but through their lack of dramatic quality.

Hold fast to the league, she urged, at least until something better comes, for its possibilities are greater than have ever allowed.

The Rev. Bernard B. Sutcliffe, newly appointed pastor of the First Presbyterian church, was guest-conductor of the Wednesday chapel hour services. The Reverend Sutcliffe spoke on the value of the Scriptures in man's ceaseless search for God and as the solution to his besetting moral and spiritual problems. "God," he declared, "will not open our eyes until we open his book, the Bible."

CPS Baseball Nine to Meet Huskies Here

First Home Game Friday;
Loggers Open Schedule at Seattle Thursday

After opening its schedule in Seattle this Thursday against the University of Washington, the first Ennis-coached Logger varsity baseball nine will make its initial home appearance here Friday afternoon in a return game with the Husky squad, beginning at 3:00 o'clock.

Jess Brooks, ace Lumberjack hurler who shut out the Huskies here last year in a surprise Logger victory, will be on the mound again Friday, with either Larry Ragan or Louie Staples slated for pitching duty on Thursday. A lengthy sick list and some hot competition makes starting assignments for a number of other positions uncertain.

Holding down the inside lane for the catching berth are Mel Miller and Gene Duncan. In Erling Tollefson's illness, Dan Mullen, regular third-baseman, may start at first base, with Bill Pate, freshman prospect, at third. Johnny Milroy will hold down his regular second-base job, but in Thursday's game Jess Brooks will probably be at short-stop in place of Frank Plouf, who has an injured leg.

With Brooks at short or on the mound, his regular left field post will be taken by Johnny Van Eitan, promising new-comer. Les Briggs, another freshman, will be in center field, with Ed Burkland, veteran, in the right pasture.

In last year's home and home series, the Huskies could do no better than tie and lose, by scores of 11-11 at Seattle and 5-0 on the CPS field.

Other games on a revised Logger schedule announced by Ennis are: April 22, Whitman, here (double-header); May 1, Bellingham Normal, here (double-header); May 2, Bellingham Normal, here (double-header); May 7-8, Portland U., in Portland; May 9, Linfield, at McMinnville; May 15-16, Willamette, here; May 20, Olympia, there; May 27, Yakima, there.

Intramural Softball Play Starts Today

With Sigma Zeta Epsilon as defending champions, the intramural outdoor softball league will get under way at noon today, when the two independent teams, Terrible Swedes and Peter Pugets, meet in the opening tilt.

Under a new schedule, one game will be played at noon each day of the week, doing away with 1 o'clock tilts. The Zetes begin defense of their title against the Delta Kappa Phi outfit on Tuesday; Alpha Chi Nu meets Sigma Mu Chi on Wednesday; the Zetes and the Swedes clash on Thursday; and the Mu Chis meet Delta Pi Omicron on Friday.

A faster game is expected to result this year from the change to a smaller, harder ball, without raised seams. Gloves will be used by the entire infield, with chest protector and mask for the catcher.

Ladders Posted In Golf, Tennis

With varsity golf and tennis competition due to start within the next two weeks, ladders for challenge play in both sports have been posted by Coach Lou Grant. The tennis squad opens this Saturday against Bellingham normal at Bellingham, and meets the University of Washington varsity in Seattle on the following Saturday.

Eleven Logger divot-diggers will see action in opening meets on Friday, April 24, when a five-man team encounters Bellingham normal there, and a six-man team entertains the University of Oregon here at Fircrest.

Tennis candidates are ranked in the ladder in the following order: Bob Swan, Maynard Carlson, Eugene Burgoyne, Don Kruzner, Howie Rickett, Don Maynes, Bill Bannister, Carl Kuhl, John Ashbaugh, and Ed Williams. A player may challenge as far as three ahead of him. The golf ladder, with challenging limited to two ahead, is as follows: Bob Anderson, Harold Gustafson, Bill Sherman, Hunter Johnson, Howard Hass, Jack Enright, Gene Burgoyne, and Vaughn Stoffel.
