Calling All Faculty - Calling All Students For Fun! For Food! For Free! It's the All-College Picnic

Games, baseball and what-will-you, are being arranged by Don Bennett and June Larson. Kerittu Kahn and Louise Kipper on the food committee promise plenty of hot dogs, potato salad, coffee and cake. Irene Pearson and Genevieve Verone are busy as the advertising committee. Mrs. Carol Angst and Mr. McDonald will serve as chaperons. Mary Agnes Gallagher and Walter Seabloom, co-chairmen, cordially invite all members of the faculty and the student body to attend.

After the picnic there will be a program and come-as-you-are dance at the SUB.

Don't forget; see you at the picnic on Columbus Day, Friday, October 20th, at 4 p. m. We'll meet at Point Defiance, going by bus or in private cars. If it rains, the picnic will be held in the Student Union Building.

Waldo Davila, Jose Montano Are New Bolivian Students

By Lois Phillips

Imagine becoming an executive in a foreign country just one week after you arrive! That is just what happened to Waldo Davila, a Bolivian student who entered CPS this fall and was elected vice-president of the freshman class.

Waldo and his pal, Jose Montano (pronounced Hosay), decided to come to the United States to school for several very good reasons. The first is that in Bolivia they would have to go to school eight years instead of four, and second, but definitely not less important, is that they are fulfilling a life-long ambition in coming to this country.

Their choice of C. P. S. was made because the principal of the American Institute in La Paz, their home town, had visited the college, was fully impressed, and promptly began promoting good Pan-American relations on his own hook by securing scholarships to C. P. S. for Waldo and Jose.

After two years here, the boys plan to continue their study of engineering at the University of Washington. They explained that they are both planning to return to Bolivia when their educations are completed. Four years away from home is a long time and Waldo admits that he "was homesick" but also insists that he isn't any more. The trip up here was accomplished by train, boat, and bus. Taking a train to Buenos Aires, they boarded a ship there and docked in New York which is a "wonderful city." From New York they travelled all the way across the continent by bus. "It was some trip," Waldo recalls.

Their hobbies are reading, listening to music, (they like American swing), and "doing nothing."

Bolivians, according to Waldo and Jose, like the United States very much but feel that Americans are too materialistic and don't take enough time to enjoy themselves. However, they hasten to add that "You can have a very good time here."

Contrary to popular opinion, the food here is not much different from that served in Bolivia. To the question: "Do you like the food here?" they reply, "Of course. Everyone likes food." Which just goes to prove that people are just alike the world over.

Beanie Boosters Sponsor Dance Saturday Night

"B. B."—I wonder what that means. Hey, Joe, what is the "B. B."?

Those two mysterious letters which have been seen in the halls lately stand for "Beanie Bounce," the freshman sport dance, to be held Saturday evening, Oct. 13, in the Student Union Building from 8:30 to 11:30.

Co-chairmen for the affair are Joyce Taylor and Keith Chase, who, with the assistance of their committee chairmen, will carry out the motif of the green beanie—the decorous froshie apparel.

"Everyone—'froshmores' to seniors—are urged to come," stated Joyce and Keith, as detailed preparations have been made to make this very first dance of the semester a real success.

Tickets, which will be sold every afternoon from 12 to 1 in the SUB for 50 cents each, are for couples only; however, stags will be admitted after payment of 35 cents at the door.

Chaperons for the affair will be Professor and Mrs. Edward D. Gibbs, Professor and Mrs. Clyde Keutzer, and Professor and Mrs. Raymond Seward.

Those on the committees are as follows:

Publicity—Delores Klaiber and Kelly Hamilton; decorations—Madge Spears and Sam Tangora; refreshments—Marilyn Dunlap and Ray Cason; entertainment—Anita Stebbins and Byron Crull; door—Gretchen Swayze and Robert Rowe, and clean-up—Beverly Johnson and Mark Kennell.

Sophomores Score In College Tests

"The group average on all the college sophomore tests given last spring at CPS was well above national averages," stated Christian Miller, registrar. The National College tests were given last March to students who are now juniors.

The purpose of the tests is to estimate the knowledge, abilities, and interests of the sophomore students who are now juniors.

Highest in the school in contemporary affairs and second highest in general culture was Maurice Goldenhar, with scores of 191 and 284. The other student among the three highest in two divisions was Kerittu Kahn, who placed third in both the culture and contemporary affairs tests with grades of 270 and 147, respectively. Thelma Hardy headed the list in culture with a total of 296 points, while Robert Cronapder came second in contemporary affairs with a score of 159.

With a grade of 88, Pearl Jamieson earned top honors in English followed by Louise Kipper and Janice Lindeman who tied for second with 80's.

"These tests are designed to help guide the students in their choice of subjects for the next two years. Many students, however, have not called for their score sheets and may do so at any time," Professor Miller concluded.

Five Freshman Plays Given Friday Evening

Comedy, Tragedy, Mystery and Romance Featured
In Program with Variety of Specialty Numbers;
Production Committees Handled Entirely by First Year Students.

With all phases of production handled by the Freshman Class for the first time since the war began to drain off the largest part of the college's manpower, the annual freshman one-act plays were presented in Jones Hall auditorium last Friday night at 8:15.

First on the program was "Before the Curtain Rises," a two-man comedy with Keith Chase as a harassed theatrical producer in search of talent and Leonard Raver as a mysterious, Shakespeare-quoting stranger who turned out to be just another actor in search of a job. Mary Rough was student director and properties were handled by Jackie Holmberg and Barbara Rowe, with Vera Jensen, Darlene Wyckoff and Janice Allen assisting.

This was followed by "The Ghost in the Green Gown," a comedy melodrama involving a haunted house, a trio of freshman girls, played by Neva Iverson, Margaret Flannagan and Harriet Fiske, a movie actress named Rhonda, who is tired of playing criminal roles, and her friend Lillian. The latter two were portrayed by Aleatha Mae Dietrich and Frances Swenson, respectively. Gretchen Ernst was also on hand as a colored servant. The student director was Dorothy Schweinler, assisted by Peggy Rough. Properties were secured by Zelta Mae Lay and Marian Newman, and Donna June Bennett, Eleanor Roundtree and Lorraine Brown were assistants.

"Would Your Husband Shoot," was a triangle play centering on the efforts of a wife, Gloria Beckerman, to make her husband, Harold Simonson, jealous of a friend, John Larson. Elizabeth Anderberg and Marthajean Sandin were student director and assistant, respectively. The property committee was headed by Betty Robinson, aided by Lorraine Dahl, Aileen Wood and Juanita Christenson.

In "Wrong Numbers," Gloria Gipple played a talkative waitress, and Dolores Klaiber and Beverly Farrel a couple of female criminals trying to outsmart each other. LaVerne King was student director and Doris Rutherford and Nan Wilson had charge of properties. Janet La Pore and Colleen Koler were assistants.

The evening's entertainment ended with Byron Crull going through

Bob Winskill Song Chairman; Pep Songs to be Presented

This year's Songfest committee was appointed last week by A. S. C. P. S. President, Miss Ruth Ann Dodsworth. Chosen to serve on the committee are Harold Simonson, president of the Freshman Class; Peggy Rough, president of the Sophomore Class; Janice Lindeman, president of the Junior Class, and Ruby Smith, acting president of the Senior Class. Bob Winskill was appointed general chairman of the event.

The first meeting of the committee was held Thursday and it was decided this year's Songfest should be limited to songs written at a march tempo. The college has many 'dreamy' songs, but few stirring marches have been written, it was explained.

The Songfest, an annual presentation of the College, consists of songs written and presented by members of each class in an inter-class competition at Homecoming.

Last year the winners were the seniors, who presented a song written by Marion Clendenen. They were awarded a plaque upon which was inscribed the name of the author and the year of the class.

Bob Winskill

With only four more weeks until Homecoming and the presentation of the songs, it is earnestly hoped that all members of all classes will pitch in and write a song that will go down in CPS history.

Freshman Class Off to Flying Start With High Spirits and Plans Laid

Hats off to the Freshman Class! Sophomores may persecute you, Seniors and Juniors may heckle you, but we are mighty proud of the way you have taken hold of things here at the College.

Pep is something a college all too often lacks, especially during wartime, and though peacetime has returned we are still suffering from un-normalcy. We can all be assured that normalcy is on its way again when high schools all over the country, and even schools in South America, send as peppy a group of students as are found in the roster of the Freshman Class.

For all of us, the real task at college is to study, and completely taken over Freshman Play night. You did a super job, Freshmen! Only directors and assistant directors were upper-classmen.

For all of us, the real taks at college is to study, and study well. Freshmen—look to your laurels—you've shown us what you can do in the dramatic line, and you are about to show us your social abilities. We want to see, also, how much you can learn!

This coming Friday you, as a class, are to be received into the student body of the College of Puget Sound. The ceremony is called "Matriculation," and even if it seems trivial to you at first, you will come to regard it as one of the treasured moments of your college life when you pass through the gates of the color post.

Be proud you are Freshmen and remember that even though we may not treat you as equals at first, we are really glad and proud to accept you as a vital part of CPS.

DOWN FROM THE NEST

By Dickie

Return

I drew a deep breath and walked up to the steps of Jones Hall. "This place, I thought to myself, I am going to like." It was early morning, the grass was green and dewy, the vines on the building were radiant, and I was at peace with the world. I was going back to college, I was going to race against an army transfer to try and finish up . . . I drew a deep breath and walked up the steps, and into the hall.

The half-forgotten smell of musty buildings, long inhabited by generations of students assailed my nostrils. "This is sure different from Fort Lewis," I agreed with myself, "calm, quiet . . ."

Then the bell rang. I expected the usual bustle from one hall to another, but I was totally unprepared for the onslaught of giggling, gleeful, green-capped little girls. They whooshed into the hall, down the steps, and in a minute they were gone, only to be followed, at more sedate rates by the upper classmen. I still felt calm and happy, and thought to myself that I was becoming an old fogey or something, forgetting how freshmen are the world over.

I inquired the room number from some ex-G. I. (who looked at me pityingly) for my first class; I walked down the hall and peeked in. Horrors! Not a pair of pants in sight. Seeing no hole handy, I sneaked in, sliding along the back side of the wall, and plunked myself into, what I thought was an inconspicuous seat. More and more girls piled in, I was cut off. In walked the instructor, a female. "Cripes!" I thought, "I'm surrounded." She smiled at me, through somewhat of a daze, made some joke about me being all alone (a fact I was very well aware of) and then she picked up the class cards. My life at the College of Puget Sound had begun.

Freshman Reactions

Still not accustomed to college ways, after all these years, I remained puzzled. I had never seen so many freshmen; they were here, there, everywhere, all over. You walked into a classroom, and you tripped over the green hats. Your library studying was punctuated with the little squeaking noises that biologists associate with species Homo freshmaniasis. I could recollect my own dim dark freshman daze, ever so many years ago.

I had to sit in special seats assigned to me, I had to sit in a classroom until every upperclassman had left his seat; and even as a sophomore (a big burly freshman-scarer, I was, too) I remember waiting for the juniors and seniors to pick up their books (but so that I wouldn't be disgraced in front of the freshmen, I would pretend to be checking my notes until the upper-class people had their coats on).

I don't know what has happened to the younger generation; I guess they're young and eager, wanting to make their place in the cruel, brash world, too. So I bow to their youth, and hence a sorrowful sigh, I was young once.

The Dungeon

While exploring the college, I heard the peck-peck-peck of a typewriter. Memories of the old college newspaper office flitted across my brain—to get back in the harness, wheee.

I finally located the door, it was rather dusty and I had difficulty seeing through it, so I sneaked it open an inch. A bare room, with spotty cracked walls met my peeping eyes, and I noticed a line of girls. The army had overcome my good manners, so I hopped the line, without even asking for introductions. "What is this line for?" I asked, "chow?" "For the typewriter, silly."

Pulling up my coat collar, for a chilling draft hit me right between the eyes, I found out I was in the Trail office. "The Trail Office," everybody exclaimed, "how did you get in here?" and they all fled, leaving me with a cute little girl with a red sweater, glasses and a wristwatch. "Where does the trail lead to?" I asked her. "Can you spell cat—first letter is 'c' . . ."

"C-A-T" I spelled proudly — I hadn't forgotten my college training. "You're on the paper," she exclaimed. And so, taking the rope off my neck, that is why I'm writing; hope you don't mind.

Anderson Hall's occupants seem to have all moved in now and apparently are well satisfied with life in general. Even the 30 freshmen in the basement don't seem to mind having so many room-mates. There are times when the sounds of laughing, talking, screaming, snoring and trombone vs. piano rushes up the stairs with such a roar that third floor occupants dash out to see who is being murdered.

Speaking of third floor—Have you noticed Junè Larson's starry eyes this last week? Sunday she had a golf date with her father, her cousin and a lieutenant friend of the cousin. Need one say more?

The two girls who went to the store for their breakfast last Sunday morning and then locked themselves in their rooms to eat it don't even have a guilty conscience!!

You should see Lucille Ludwick inflate her cloud and float down the stairs when Walt comes to get her. That Delta Kap pin is very becoming, Lucille. A major tragedy occurred the other day! The cleaning lady (commonly known as "Cupie") left us. Who is going to leave the notes on huge piles of coke bottles to "take those back to the store!" now?

That's all for now—D. D.

Familiar Campus Customs Return

The war is over and already the campus is beginning to take on some of the old familiar customs that were lost in the shuffle of the war years. Coming up North 15th street the most striking thing to hit one in the eye is the profusion of cars — honest-to-gosh four-wheeled vehicles—parked along the north side and out behind the cloisters. Even the sacred parking spots around the quadrangle aren't as conspicuously vacant as in former times. There are still several pedal-pushers coming to classes "the hard way" though, as evidenced by the long row of "wheels" parked in the cloisters.

It's good to have back with us again Prof. McMillan, head of the geology department, Miss Van Norden, English professor and Dr. Batin, economics department head. When the rest of our wandering faculty returns, and 'tis rumored it will be soon, the college will have gone another step toward its post-war aims.

And best of all, we're welcoming back many returning veterans and former students. It's good to see the upper-classmen filling up the downstairs auditorium at chapel time. And it's also gratifying to see the balcony packed with beanies, green beanies, and a freshman under each one.

Mrs. Lillian Tregoning Kappa Phi Patroness

To the coveted office of patroness to Kappa Phi has been elected Mrs. Lillian Tregoning. She joins the rank of the other patronesses, Mrs. Stanley Logan, Mrs. Franklin Thompson, and Mrs. G. Callahan. Mrs. Tregoning also joins her three daughters in becoming attached to the Methodist sorority. Miss Helen Lewis was former patroness, but left the position to further her education.

REHEARSALITES

Margaret Flannagan making the boards squeek as she creeps fearfully across the floor . . . Aleatha Dieatrick patiently waiting until it's time to rehearse her lines . . . "But that's the way the script reads!" exclaimed Gretchen Ernst as she fell over a heap of boxes.

Leonard Raver "just playing" with his gun, to be used in the play, of course . . . Keith Chase—talking to himself? No, just rehearsing . . . Darlene Wyckoff waiting for a chance to do some prompting. After all that's what she was hired for . . . Betty Robinson looking desperately for props

Gloria Beckerman wanting to be treated as a beloved wife . . . Aileen Koler running errands faithfully performing her duties on a monitor . . . John Larsen trying to make a love scene look realistic . . . Bev Farrell ignoring Gretchen Klaiber, only in the play of course.

Harold Simonson wiping off the stick after rehearsals . . . Gipple showing possibilities of coming a very good waitress. Bob Lyon and Patrick Pratt up the stage . . . Gretchen Ernst saying that she doesn't need a director . . . Every Freshman helping make the plays a success.

the insane antics of a detective feigning lunacy in order to trap pearl thief Gretchen Swayze in the office of brain specialist Dale Nelson. Marjorie Smith was the doctor's assistant and Kelly Hamilton played a messenger boy from the jeweler's. Student director was Irene Fearn, assisted by Lorraine Hasson. Virginia George had charge of properties, and assistants were Shirley Kendall and Shirley Emmert.

Specialty numbers between the acts were performed by freshmen Patricia Paterson and Arthur Knight, vocal soloists, Robert Holland, chromatic harmonica artist, and Anne Winters, piano soloist.

Although freshmen plays have been an annual event at CPS for many years, it is only for the past five that they have been performed in the evening with the public invited, according to dramatics director Martha Pearl Jones. Prior to that, they were given in student assemblies.

Only once before had the production details of the plays been handled by committees made up entirely of first year students. That was in 1941. The only upperclassmen connected with the plays this year were the dramatic production majors who served as student directors and assistant directors, and Charles Nee, who supervised the stage crew.

Committees for the plays were, ushers: Twylla Jones, chairman, Marilyn Dunlap, Retha Conlon, Shirley Opsata, Natalie Nicholson, Patsy Highfield, Ruth Ann Tregoning, Mary Wight, Beverly Tietje, Doris Mitchell, Jane Hagen, Muriel Thompson, Betty Barkost, Dorothy Schut, Joan McIver, Jo Ann Stevens and Marjorie Mann; posters: Beverly Johnson, chairman, Irma Russell, Gladys Jones, Joyce E. Irene Vokich, Beverly May, Mary Lou McIlwraith and Ellen Irsfield.

In the Service

The criminal always returns to the scene of his crime, and some of our former students now in uniform have been seen reconnoitering "haunting" these halls. Among them, 1st Lieut. Carl Engfer, bombardier on a B-17, Flying Fortress formerly at a base in England, attended CPS in '38 and '39 and has been in the Army Air Corps five years and has received several oak leave clusters.

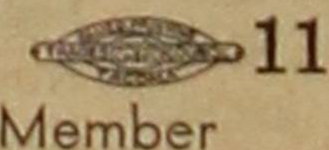

Lieut. Jerry Baker, soon to be Mr. Jerry Baker, was seen talking to Dr. Thompson about enrolling today or tomorrow. Jerry took navigator's training in Texas.

Two freshmen of last spring semester have been renewed acquaintances the past week with brief furloughs. Pvt. Bob K. and S/1 Walt Lowenstein are in Stadium grads and Walt was a proficient debater.

T/5 Harvey Wegner, science major at CPS, is now sweating it out in Calcutta, India. He's in the mail and 'tis rumored he may be home for good by Christmas.

Kappa Phi Rushees Enjoy Scavenger Hunt and Tea

"Ring out the old" was the idea carried out when members and pledges of Kappa Phi met Saturday night, October 6th, to sleuth the city in a scavenger hunt. Co-chairmen were Evelyn Marshall and Helen Mahoney. Girls met at Carol Todd's home, 1409 North 6th St., at 7:45 in their old clothes.

This was the second rush affair on the Methodist sorority's rushing calendar. The committees included Lu Randall, invitations; Ginny Norton, community singing; Carol Hamilton, devotions; Thelma Hardy, favors, and Phyllis Lawson and Carol Todd, refreshments.

On Sunday, September 30th, Kappa Phi held its first rush affair in the form of a tea at the Student Union Building. Jeane Thurber, president of the organization, presided, giving the welcoming speech to the Freshmen, following which Mary Ann Truitt told the girls about the sorority and its aims. Polly Packard, vice-president, explained the theme "Bells" which has been chosen for this year's work along with the motto, "Ring in the New." Mrs. Robbins, sponsor of the group gave a warm welcome to the new girls and told them about some of the past accomplishments of the local chapter. Ruth Gustafson gave two violin solos, accompanied by Dotha Smock, while Carol Todd led the group in community singing.

Patronesses and guests, besides the freshman girls, included Mrs. Lyle Drushell, Mrs. Tom Callahan, Mrs. R. F. Thompson, Mrs. Tom Swayze, and Mrs. E. Gibbs.

It has been announced by President Jeane Thurber that the pledges will receive a Kappa Phi rose the afternoon and evening of October 11th, which is to be worn on October 12th. The informal pledging will be in the reception room of Jones Hall, October 16th.

Concluding the rushing program will be the first meeting of the pledges on Sunday afternoon, October 28th.

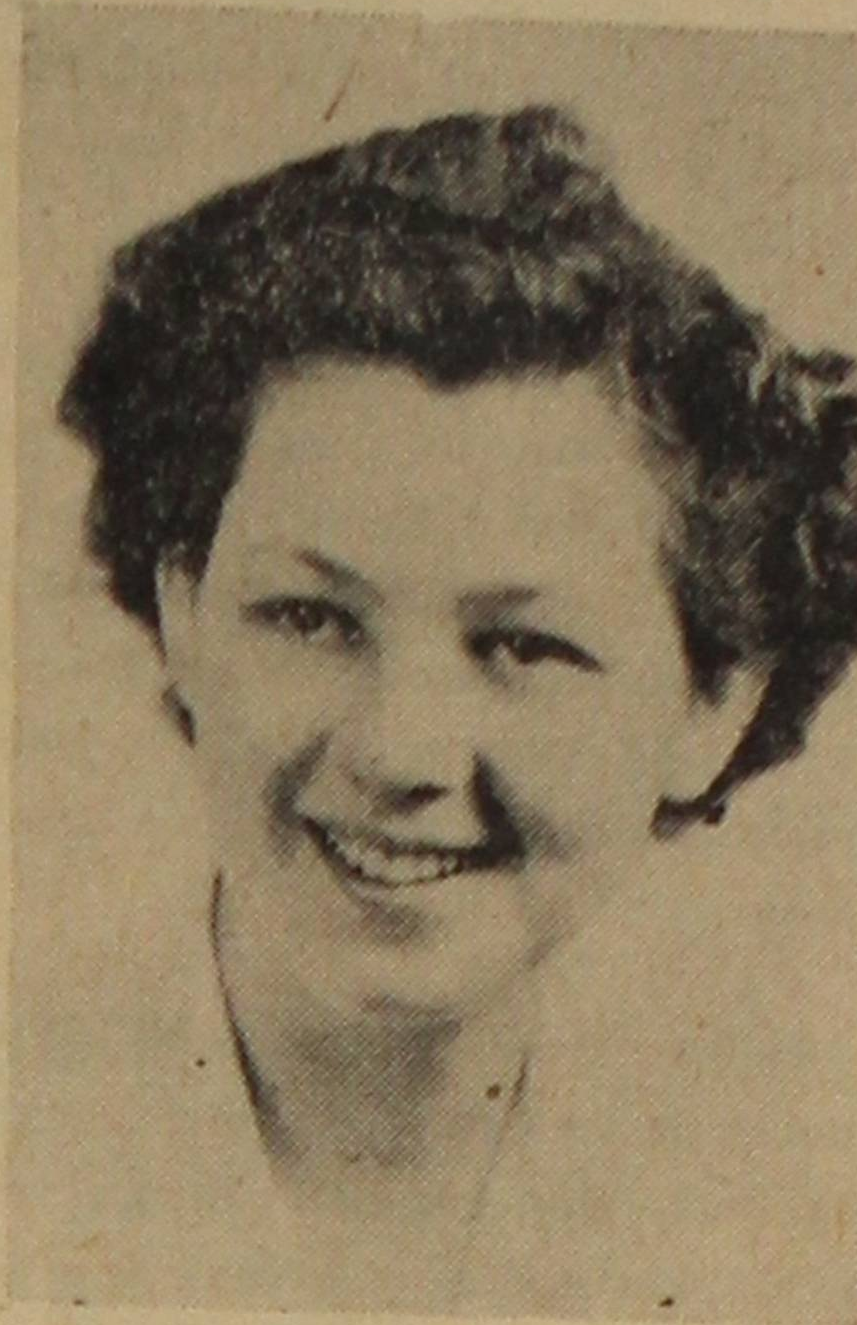

Lake Home Residence Scene of O. T. Party

Occupational Therapy students enjoyed their first party together last Saturday at the home of Miss Edna Ellen Bell, head of the Occupational Therapy department and advisor for the group.

Miss Bell's home on American Lake North provided an afternoon's enjoyment of lake sports by the girls, with refreshments served later. Frances Quinn was chairman of the affair, assisted by the president of the group, Mary Rough.

Murden Woods Is IRC President; Banquet Planned

Beginning the new year with a bang, the International Relations Club will have a banquet on Monday, October 15. Exact time and place have not been announced. Guest speaker will be a native of Java, Mr. Jan LeBlue.

An organizational meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Lela Shiffbauer Monday evening October 1. Officers for the coming year were elected at this time. President is Murden Woods, vice president, Marshall Campbell, and secretary-treasurer, Janet Blake. Present at this meeting was last year's president, Paul Raymond.

Impromptu speaker for the evening was Kyle Smith, recently of the United States Army, who returned to the states in August. He related some of his experiences while in Italy with the Fifth Army.

Reservations for the banquet must be made by October 10 with Betty Heidinger Smith, Murden Woods, Janette Blake, or Marshall Campbell.

All-College Reception Held In SUB September 28

Against a background of lovely autumn flower arrangements, President and Mrs. R. Franklin Thompson, members of the faculty and their wives, and officers of the Associated Students welcomed students and their parents Friday evening, Sept. 28, at the all-college reception.

The reception gave students an opportunity to greet new faculty

Sorority Pledge Banquets End Successful Rush Week

Gala sorority banquets for the informal pledging of 72 girls into the four sororities on the campus officially ended this season's rushing period.

Kappa Sigma Theta held its pledge banquet at the Five Point Inn with Miss Mary Agnes Gallagher as chairman. Lavendar and green flowers, the sorority colors, were used for the centerpiece. Pledged to Kappa Sigma Theta sorority were Misses Shirley Anning, Eileen Boyd, Beverly Farrell, Gloria Gipple, Jane Hagen, Barbara Haslam, Mary Lou Henry, Helen Hewett, Kathryn Hultgren, Twylla Jones, Irene Kilduff, Delores Klaiber, Janet Lapore, Mary Lou McIlwraith, Jeanne Miles, Doris Mitchell, Marjorie Ness, Jo Anne Stevens, Joan Storhow, Gretchen Swayze, Beverly Tietje, Doris Ward, Jeanne Williams, Mary Wight and Martha Wright.

With Miss Violet Hessey, chairman, Delta Alpha Gamma sorority selected the Green Parrot Inn for their banquet. Rose corsages were presented to the pledges. The Misses Patricia Dooley, Patricia Gordon, Joan McIver, Natalie Nicholson, Joyce Richardson, Donna Bennett, Gretchen Ernst, Dorothy Scutt, June Hyatt, Ruth Ann Tregoning, Gloria Beckerman, Junita Christensen, Anne Evans, Beverly Johnson, Joyce Hegg, Catherine Funke, and Jo Gormley were pledged to Delta Alpha Gamma.

Using an Hawaiian theme, Alpha Beta Upsilon gave its pledge dinner in the junior ballroom of the Winthrop Hotel. Miss Barbara Healy and Miss Gwen Simmons were co-chairmen. Alpha Beta Upsilon pledges include the Misses Phyllis Bloser, Retha Conlon, Aleatha Dietrich, Neva Iverson, Lois Phillips, Sue Ritchey, Betty Robinson, Madge Spears, Frances Swenson, Joyce Taylor, and Harriet Warne.

Lambda Sigma Chi sorority chose the Army-Navy room of the Winthrop Hotel as the scene for their pledging. Chairmen for the affair were the Misses Mary Louise Guthrie and Katherine Alm. To Lambda Sigma Chi were pledged the Misses Betty Barkost, Joanne Boedecker, Mary Alice Dyer, Margaret Flanagan, Daphne Hilton, Ruth Potter, Elenor Roundtree, Irma Russel, Doris Rutherford, Muriel Thompson, Nan Wilson, Anne Winter, Aileen Wood and Jeanne Taylor.

members, and welcome back Miss Linda Van Norden and Dr. Battin who have returned to CPS after leaves of absence.

Alpha Kai Omega Plans Rush Party

On Wednesday, October 10, Alpha Kai Omega fraternity will hold its rush party in the SUB fraternity room, with Bob Oquist as chairman.

Games will be played, and in the course of the evening, the results of the secret ballot will be disclosed, and officers for the coming semester will be announced.

Invitations have been issued, and the festivities will begin at 7:30, lasting until 9:30.

Alpha Kai Omega is a consolidation of the five fraternities which were formerly on the campus, and was organized in recent years to keep fraternity life going until the others could be resumed.

Senior Girls Win Offices

CPS will be represented at the National Methodist Youth Fellowship when Ruth Ann Dodsworth and Mary Ann Truitt join the youth council for their national conference.

Ruth Ann was elected automatically as one of 15 members throughout the United States when she became World Friendship chairman of the group. Mary Ann, who was a member previously, will this year serve in the capacity of secretary of the Student National Commission. Ruth Ann is also representative of the Board of Missions and the Board of Evangelism.

Both girls have recently returned from the Aug.-Sept. meeting of the council in Chicago and will return for another session during Christmas vacation.

The National Conference serves as a steering committee for the national organization and the program and plans for the year are worked out at their meetings.

Fashionettes

Sportin' at Spur meeting was Thelma Hardy in a smooth beige and striped green wool dress with that new Chinese motif so popular. Feature treat at the Split Tea was Mary Lou McIlwraith in her fascinating black and chartreuse date dress with startlin' chinese symbols shoulder studded.

Lucky Darcia Dayton finds her wardrobe treasures in Seattle — very special is her new color stripe and white-pleated skirt.

New Freshies are all style-setters — Gretchen Swayze was spotted dashin' around in her red battle jacket. Very new, very neat.

For that other highlight, CPS girls are forsaking curlers for braids twirled in coronet fashion around the head. No pigtails, Topsy! Senior Dorcas Eggsbo is a pert model for you.

Varied silver bracelets sparklin' on the wrist accompany skirts and sweaters as seen on Alice Ann Cross and accentuate black gloves for that sophisticated date dress as seen on Dorothy Schweinler.

Something new seen in earrings originated by Freshie Myrtle Allen, a CPS emblem charm. Watch President Dods wearing different ear rings every day.

Our best dressed freshie vote goes this month to the green beanie wearers so frequently seen nowadays.

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE PLANNED BY SCA

An SCA cabinet meeting was held Sunday, Sept. 30th, when future plans for the organization were discussed.

Among other things, it was decided that a membership drive will be held the 11th, 12th and 13th of this month during which time each student and faculty advisor will receive a statement of the purpose of the Student Christian Association. Later, each person will be contacted personally by those on the membership committee.

Dr. Jaeger is to be the advisor for the coming year.

The white arrow stands directing the way to the registrar's office, the bursar's office, and the auditorium, are the idea of the Spurs. June Larson's father made the signs.

Faculty Challenges Men on Campus

Each Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoon at 3 p. m. the faculty volleyball team challenges all male students to a game.

The faculty team is composed of Profs. Gibbs, Seward, Miller, Frederick and Don Carsten, who is acting as physical instructor for the men. Dr. Martin, who resigned last year as head of the mathematics department, also plays on the team.

All students who wish to participate in the games are asked to come to the gym on the above-mentioned days. Activity ceases around 4:30 or 5 p. m.

FROSH ENROLLMENT TOPS PREVIOUS YEAR

Freshmen occupy top berth this year at C. P. S. with an enrollment of 217 out of the entire 440 students registered for the fall semester. This enrollment tops last year's by about 100.

Taking advantage of the G. I. Bill of Rights are about 30 ex-servicemen. Some of these students attended C. P. S. before entering the armed forces.

Twenty-six colleges are represented by 35 transfer students. Some of the colleges are: U. of Rochester; No. Texas Ag. College, U. of British Columbia, Michigan State Normal, Stanford, San Jose State, U. of La Paz, Bolivia; U. of Washington.

November 9, 10, and 11, are the dates set for the Pacific Northwest Conference of Methodist Youth Fellowship in Spokane.

FACULTY NOTES

Professor McMillan is resuming a part of his curricular activities in Howarth Hall, conducting a class in chemistry and one in geology. He is still working with the U. S. Geological Survey which has quarters here at the Federal Bldg. This summer the survey took him to Montana.

After taking charge of the War Labor Board in Alaska for two years, Professor Battin is finding it quite an experience dealing with classroom economics again. He and Professor Schafer were overheard making some remarks about debate issues.

Helen Strong, the new school nurse, is making her rounds on the campus. She has her office at the gym, where she is arranging appointments for freshmen and new students taking medical examinations and at the same time assisting the doctor. She is a registered nurse, a graduate of the Swedish Hospital School of Nursing affiliated with the University of Washington.

Working for a college degree in addition to her nursing degree, she is attending classes here. She begins and ends her rounds at Anderson Hall. The froshies, who have to room in the basement aren't complaining. Helen Strong has her rooming quarters with them. She's in her office at the gym from 12:30 to 1:30 p. m. daily except Wednesday.

Intramural Program Again in Full Swing

Six-man touch football, plans for future basketball, ping pong, badminton and tennis competitions, and a school wrestling program, which may enter the intercollegiate field if enough interest is shown, are highlights of the intramural sports program outlined by Don Carsten, men's physical instructor.

Mr. Carsten and Professor Gibbs, directors of the program, have asked that those interested sign up as soon as possible in the gymnasium. Meetings are held there every Tuesday and Thursday between 12:10 and 1:10 p. m., with Ed Meneghetti in charge.

The touch football team, which started organization early last week on a basis of 10 men per squad, will play a regular round robin schedule as will the basketball fives to be organized later.

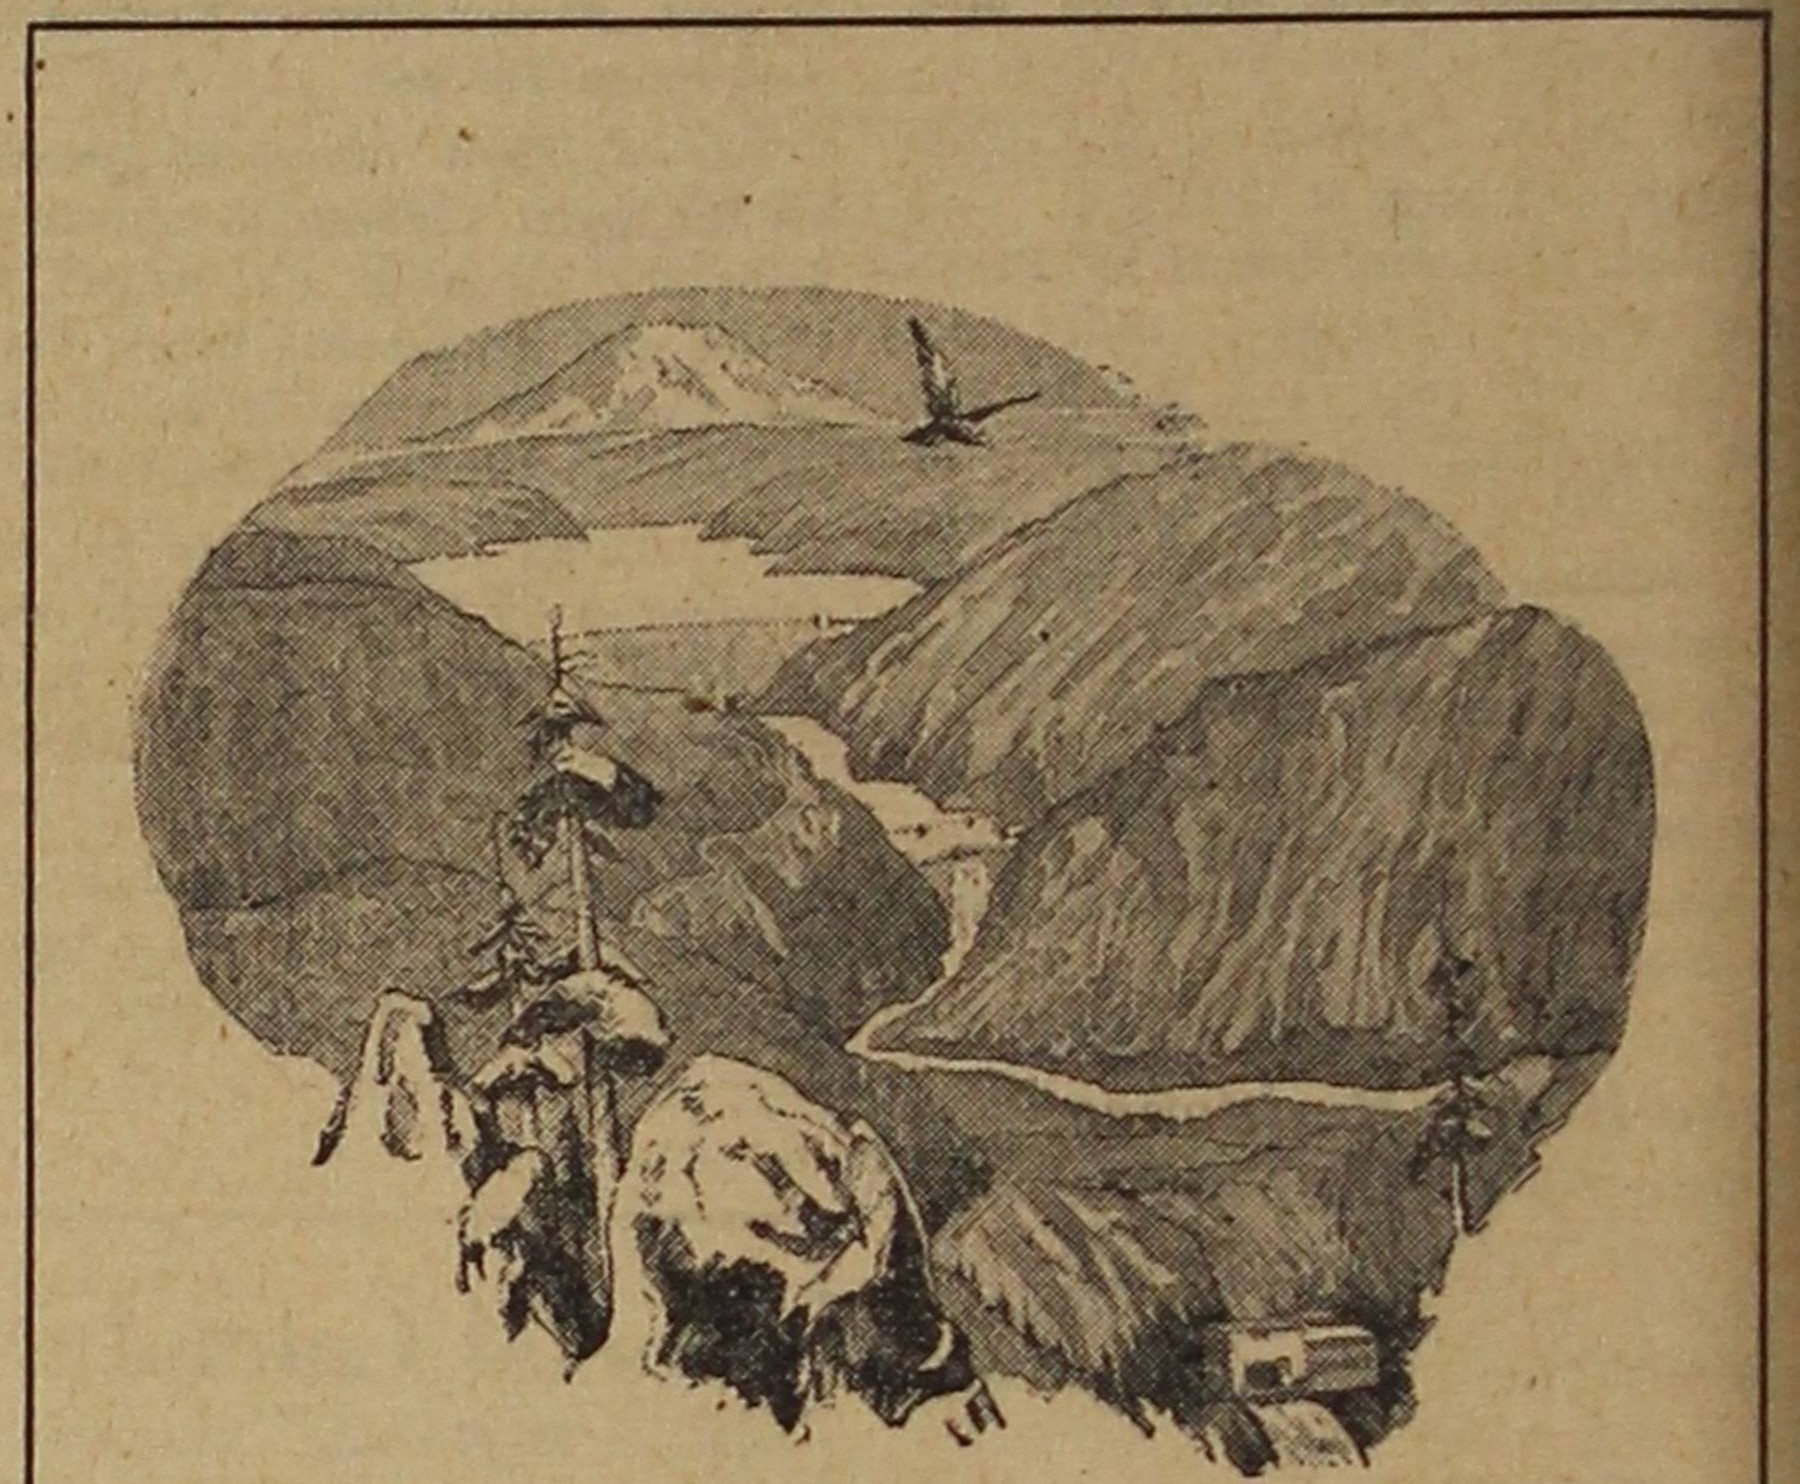

Ping-pong tournaments, both doubles and singles, will be held in the SUB, and if sufficient interest is shown, badminton and tennis tournaments will materialize in the spring.

The intramural wrestling program, which has been slowly gaining momentum in the men's physical education classes, may, if interest continues to grow, develop into a grappling team which will meet those of other colleges, its organizers and supporters declare. Intramural track and field events are also on the schedule for this year.

All those interested in the intramural program are urged to register for the activity of their choice as soon as possible.

Tacoma's SECOND NISQUALLY — One of America's Great Power Projects—Now in Operation

FIRST power from Tacoma City Light's newest hydro-electric project—the Second Nisqually Development—is now flowing to Tacoma homes and industries. The largest power producing unit—the 40,000 kilovolt-ampere La Grande generator—is now on the line. Following closely, and but a few weeks hence, is one 25,000 kilovolt-ampere Alder generator. A second and similar unit is now being manufactured for installation.

Second Nisqually is designed to double the energy production capacity of Tacoma City Light.

It provides new surety of continuous, dependable power . . . not only for today but for generations.

The two great dams at Alder and LaGrande . . . the long tunnels through rock . . . represent great achievements in engineering and construction—a lasting credit to the engineers, the contractors and the workmen whose skill and effort brought reality out of blueprints.

Second Nisqually stands as another monument to the Tacoma policy of maintaining the lowest electric light and power rates in America, that electric power may better serve Tacoma's citizens . . . in their homes and at their work.
