Shells Launched As Crew Club Invades American Lake

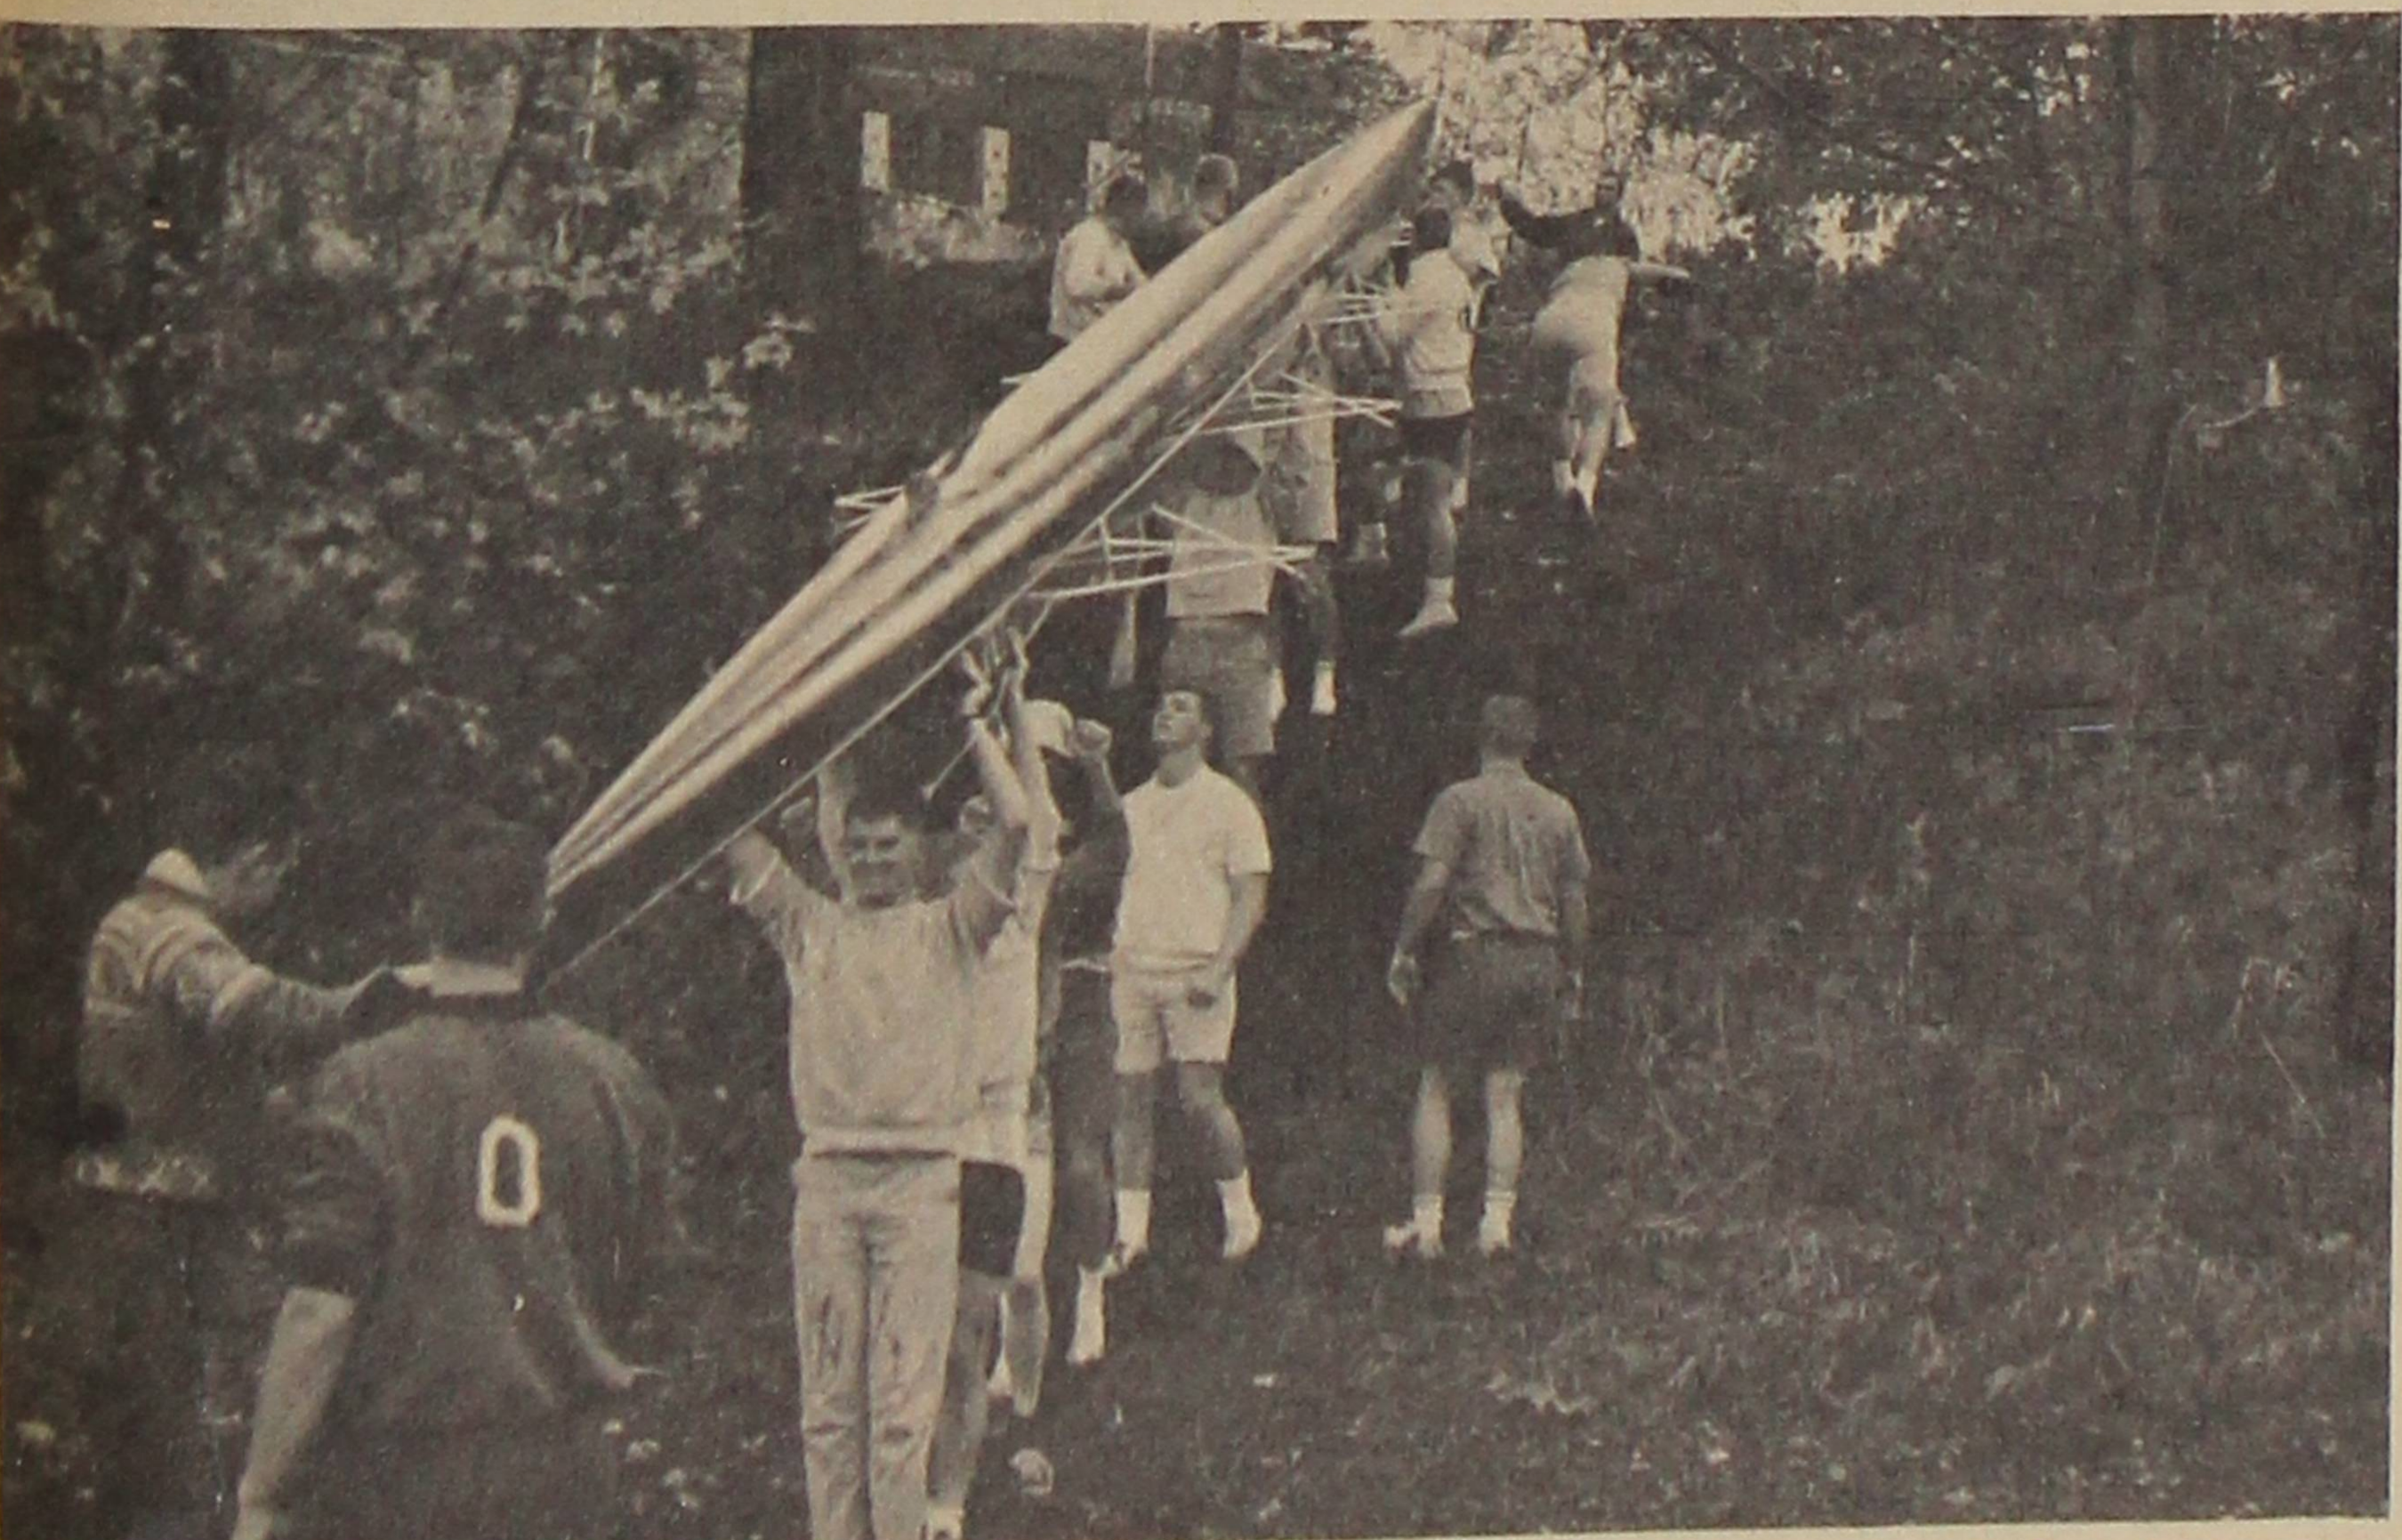

By Bill Baarsma

DOWN THE HILL, and into the water our shining new shell must go, is the chant of Crew Club members as they ready themselves for a practice session on American Lake waters near Tacoma.

"Ready all, row!"

These words are ringing across American Lake every afternoon during the week from 2 o'clock to 5:30 as the University Varsity Boat Club begins preparations for the year ahead.

"The boat club is made up of UPS students. Right now we are waiting for approval from the Board of Trustees and Administration so we can represent the University of Puget Sound in inter-collegiate athletics," says Jim Wyman boat club commodore.

The boat club is independently supporting itself with no financial help from the University, but before it can compete officially against other schools it must get the approval of the Board and Administration.

Wyman explained that there is a "support the crew" campaign in full swing in the Tacoma area. Crew queen candidates have been chosen from the various living groups on campus. They are going to be visiting business and civic groups in the Tacoma area to gain support for the club. There is presently a crew button sale.

Wyman hopes that if the club gains recognition there will be a school crew week with all members of the ASB helping to support this student project.

The two 64 foot shells have been in the water for two weeks. There are over 25 men presently turning out for the eight varsity positions. There will be also a junior varsity crew. The first team eight will travel to the various meets.

Paul Meyer, crew coach, has said that the club "is progressing satisfactorily". Meyer has had a long experience in rowing competition even winning events in the Olympics. He is coaching for the fun of it, receiving no pay.

Delegates to Model U.N. Conclave Named

Model United Nations Committee released over the weekend the names of delegates to the Spokane annual session of the Model United Nations. The selection was based on each applicant's performance in a current affairs examination and in a verbal interview given to the successful ones.

The delegates are: Christian Solinsky, Naman Alami, Ric Moulden, Bob Sprenger, Alexis Parks, Susan Schieber, Barbara Melvin, and Jim Powers. Returning delegates are Jerry Thorpe, Danna Kingen, Larry Blake and Sharon Peck.

The chairman of the group, Joe Ogbogu, told of the group starting their studying this Thursday. He said, "This sort of thing requires good and adequate preparation. We are representing a very important Arab nation and I am highly confident in the ability and capability of the team to do not only Syria but also our school credit."

Dr. Warren Tomlinson is the advisor.

Alice Bond Attend Cofab

Alice C. Bond, associate professor of physical education at UPS, last week attended the national Institute of Girls Sports, the first conference of its kind to be held in the United States.

Miss Bond was among 225 men and women from all over the country to attend the conference, held at the University of Oklahoma. The purpose of the conclave was to establish a broader base for a varied sports program for girls and women in public schools and colleges. Special emphasis is being placed on track and field and gymnastics.

The Institute was co-sponsored by the Womens Board of the United States Olympic Development Committee and the Division for Girls and Women's Sports of the American Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

Editorial Comment . . . .

Last Thursday the Associate Study Body officers took a calculated risk. One of the most controversial individuals spoke on one of the most controversial subjects in the nation today. The ASB turned out in mass to listen, appraise and analyze what James Meredith had to say. The experience was rewarding.

Dr. Thompson has often said that the students have proven right 90% of the time. He felt that if the students wanted to listen to Meredith they had this right. Dr. Thompson should be praised on his courageous decision; for it was he who gave the final o.k.

After the meeting Meredith spoke to a group of interested students in a give and take discussion. He stated more clearly his principles at this time.

"I do not care if any Negro attends the University of Mississippi. I believe that it is his decision to make. What I do believe is that no one should be abridged the right to attend if he wishes."

Meredith feels that the present question should not be decided by the Negroes but by all, white and black. It was this moderate attitude which resulted in his conflict with a number of the organized Negro civil rights groups.

At the faculty lunch afterwards Meredith stated that he felt the faculty at U. of Mississippi had treated him fairly although pressured from some quarters.

Arena Theatre Is Well Received

By ANN DRIVER

"Overtones" is a snob appeal play. It was comparatively well played this past weekend in the Arena Theatre. Lynn Berven, Pat Hill, Kitty Zittel and Leslie Miller played two bitches and their egos.

Aside from the fact that no one shops at Sak's, everybody goes to Bergdorf's and the Ritz was destroyed at least ten years ago, the play, the acting, and the situation fulfilled the desired effect.

"Waiting for Godot" also fulfilled the expectations of this captured viewer. There was no identification, mainly because no one in the college situation does not know whence he came nor toward what he moves.

In "Godot," nobody comes, nobody goes, nothing happens — it's awful.

olic and Jewish).
 Prices for all shows are $.75 for students, $1.00 general admission.

UPS Students Elected to National ISA

Four UPS students were elected as national officers of the Independent Student Association at that organization's national convention in Bozeman, Montana, last week.

The new national ISA officers are Dave Wagner, president; Joanne Riechle, first vice-president; Dick Sloan, second vice-president; and Willa Ford, national director of public relations. Professor Goman was chosen as National Faculty Advisor.

At the gathering it was decided to hold next year's convention in Tacoma. The eight delegates from UPS who attended the convention were Pat Cunningham, Willa Ford, Dave Myers, Bob Reese, Joanne Biechle, Dick Sloan, Dave Wagner and Barbara Williams.

Campus Shorts

Miss Elizabeth T. Burra, a Walter Hines Page Scholar of the English Speaking Union spoke Monday for the education department. After traveling a great deal in Europe Miss Burra expressed the desire to talk to American students. Tacoma was her last stop and this is the first time a representative of E-SU has come here.

Teach Jones' birthday was celebrated by UPS and PLU spurs last Tuesday. Teach was given a candle by the group, and "home-made" birthday cards by each of the Spurs. Teach has been advising the Spurs for over 25 years.

Meredith Says: Negro Race Is Slighted

By JIM POWERS

It is perhaps appropriate to begin such an analysis by interpreting the impact which James Meredith had on the assembly as a whole. If you are one who is particularly adept at audience analysis you would have indeed realized the atmosphere was strange. His speech won a great deal of applause. Yet, I believe that among those present at the assembly there was some disappointment that Meredith had not been more specific, more bitter, in a word, more profound. However, as Mr. Meredith pointed out himself, how many bricks he dodged had no relevance in what he was to say. Let us then concern ourselves with that which was in reality, profound.

Mr. Meredith stated that "white supremacy" is the major problem in America today. It seems utterly impossible to accept this generalization without accepting its irrational counterpart — that is, "Negro inferiority" is the major problem in America today. Think about this for a moment. Is it not true that these statements, in fact, constitute the American racial dilemma? Mr. Meredith spent a good deal of time giving a historical analysis of "white supremacy" in an attempt to show that it had no justifiable origin. It would seem logical to assume that its existence can be justified by the fact that it did evolve. This is to say that both "white supremacy" and "Negro inferiority" will exist so long as one perceives the other to be a reality. If this myth is allowed to perpetuate itself, there will always be a racial problem in America.

I believe that James Baldwin in Nobody Knows My Name, analyzes human relations very well. He says:

"It is a terrible, an inexorable, law that one cannot deny the humanity of another without diminishing one's own; in the face of one's victim, one sees oneself."

The second profound statement which Mr. Meredith made was that "the question is one of citizenship." Meredith felt that the solution lies in granting the Negro full citizenship. Indeed this formula is seemingly patent; yet, to put it into use involves a good deal more than merely passing laws. The psychic cost of compliance in both the Negro and white communities must be paid. So long as men are unwilling to admit that injustice has been done they will not take steps to solve the alleged problem.

Mr. Meredith did not hold true to his unique capacity. He perceived the racial dilemma in terms of broad generalizations. He did not seem to represent the Negro community as a whole. The Negro community surely is exhibiting more purpose than that which Meredith portrayed last Thursday. It seemed that Mr. Meredith went to great extent to insulate the audience from the "Negro personality" of the South.

Lyman Is Featured at Sabre Room

UPS students will be afforded a chance to hear top-flight entertainment for the rest of the week as Arthur Lyman, currently one of the outstanding recording personalities in the nation, appears nightly in the Winthrop Hotel's Sabre Room. The program will begin at 8:30 each night.

Hawaiian born, Lyman and his group consisting of John Kramer, Allen Soares, and Harold Chang, who is recognized as one of the greatest contemporary percussionists, present an evening of highly listenable music. Though the group spends six months out of the year performing at the Shell Bar in the Hawaiian Village Hotel in Honolulu their sound is neither run-of-the-mill Hawaiian, nor is it progressive jazz. Instead it is a relaxing, exhilarating, and scintillating mood that has been described as being inspired by "the wind breathing through lazy, tropical trees, thunder storms, the breaking of waves on a coral beach, the shifting sands, the flight of birds, the echo of rustling leaves and all those other things that suggest the movement of the living and the creation and anger of God and man." In reality Lyman's music is the interpretation of his group's emotions as they prefer to play and practice without written music.

STUDENTS of the University of Puget Sound will be afforded a chance to hear recording star Arthur Lyman this week at the Sabre Room. Karl Ullis, Trail business manager, and Ron Mann, Trail associate editor, pictured above, question the musician at a press conference.

Approximately 1,500 students gathered to hear James Meredith speak on "The Background and the Nature of Our Number One Problem" last Thursday. This was one of the largest convocation gatherings ever.

Meredith began his speech with the explanation, "Today, I don't wish to curse Governor Wallace of Alabama or Governor Ross Barnett of Mississippi."

Throughout his speech Meredith brought out historical factors that have led to the racial problem of today. He related the racial problem of today as beginning with the class of the self-made Southern aristocracy. He cited the example of an Irishman who came to this country in 1880 with nothing, grew cotton, bought slaves and became an aristocrat. "The same Irishman could have been an ancestor of President Kennedy."

Meredith stressed that the southern white woman was the center of their class structure. "The southern white woman was the perpetuator of white supremacy. She became the focal center of southern tradition." Meredith maintained that any assertion by a Negro is considered as an attack on a white woman. He explained, "The Negro right to vote is an affront to her position." When he was registering at the University of Mississippi white women were crying in the streets. "They were crying because their life, their security was attached to the old system. No matter how cruel it was. Now it was being attacked."

Meredith said that the Northern whites who now welcome him and are friendly towards him would not act the same way on the University of Mississippi campus. He said, "in Mississippi, all conform to the traditions of society. Conformity is the universal law of the south. Those that don't conform are dealt with. I think that you know what that means. The nigger-lovers are dealt with."

In the South Meredith asserted that it is honorable to hate and kill Negroes. He said, "The man who shot Medger Evers probably felt that he had done a great service to the South. He had done a great thing for his society. He had committed no wrong."

For any politician to be successful in the South his platform must be of anti-Negro and the maintenance of white supremacy. Meredith cited, all election candidates hate Negroes. This is their platform, Meredith explained. Take the example of Senator Eastland of Mississippi. He won the election on a strong segregation platform. However, at the same time he is respected by the Northern Senators in Congress.

In conclusion Meredith said, "One hundred years ago the problem was whether one man could own another man. The issue today is that of citizenship — whether or not one man by virtue of accident of birth is automatically, legally, and officially superior to another. It is not a question of this right or that right!"

UPS Debaters Win At U. of Oregon

James Meredith delivers a convocation address before the UPS student body, following an introduction by Dr. R. Franklin Thompson.

Loggers Win Statistics, Yet Lose to Central, 7-0

By PETE BUECHEL

Stastics don't make a ball game. This was the lesson that the Central Washington Wildcats taught the Puget Sound Loggers on the Loggers home mud last Saturday. Record-breaking performances by three of the UPS cast could not avert a 7-0 white washing at the hands of the undefeated 'Cats. The Loggers', dominating almost every statistical department, could not find the goal line punch necessary and were stopped four times inside of the Central 15 yard stripe.

Less Ross, Joe Peyton and Maddocks established new school records during the contest. Ross and Peyton extended their own marks. Ross caught eight passes to bring his lifetime total to 66 while Peyton with two receptions ran his record-breaking season total to 29. Maddocks 36 passes attempted and 19 completed both stand as individual game marks. His season total of 122 attempted and 63 completed go into the record book as season records. Despite the record setting performances by the men of the of-

JIM MANCUSO is hauled down by four Central defenders on the Wildcat three yard line.

Meet the Loggers

By RON MANN

In this concluding article introducing members of the UPS football team you will be introduced to:

BILL DAVIS — A highly promising freshman, Davis has seen some action for the Loggers this season. The tallest player on the team this season at 6'6" and 190 pounds, Davis plays both offensive and defensive end. Born at Hattiesburg, Mississippi, Davis moved to the Northwest at an early age and attended Clover Park HS. A personable and highly humorous young man, Davis should fit in with coach Heinrich's passing offense next year. MEL JACKSON — Shifted from fullback to tackle early in the year, Jackson has been sidelined for the last two weeks with a foot injury. Up to that point he had been pushing several of the Logger starters for their jobs. While still learning the fundamentals of line play Jackson has been using his tremendous speed (he runs the 100 yard dash in 10 seconds) to great advantage and shows promise in the future.

Born 21 years ago in Cooksville, Maryland, he played with the Fort Lewis Rangers before coming to the Loggers. He is Majoring in Political Science and intends to be a politician.

BOB KAIN — A hard working freshman. Kain has been battling for a spot in the center of the Logger line all season. Though not as big as some of the other linemen (5'10", 188 pounds) he shows a lot of desire and will be a big help to the UPS forces next season.

An all around athlete at Willapa Valley HS, Kain was All-Conference in football, basketball and track. As a Senior in HS he was a member of the basketball team that played in the Class "B" State Tournament, and placed third in the high jump in the small HS State Track Meet.

He is majoring in PE.

DICK McKEGNEY — A freshman from Tacoma's Clover Park HS, McKegney is one of the brightest prospects among Logger freshmen as a receiver. While in HS he established two school records in pass receiving. He was also an All-Conference selection and was given the Inspirational Award. He was also a member of the Clover Park basketball and track teams.

JON SHOTWELL — One of the fastest members of the Loggers. Jon has been used mostly on kickoff returns this season. A product of Tacoma's Wilson HS he is also a member of the UPS track team and completes the 100 yard dash in 10.3 seconds. As a halfback Jon stands 5'9" and weighs a mere 160 pounds, but is a real hustler and team man. Majoring in business, he is the son of J. D. Shotwell, member of the UPS Board of Trustees.

STEVE MADDOCKS, UPS quarterback, drops back to throw one of his record breaking 19 completions behind a wall of Logger Linemen.

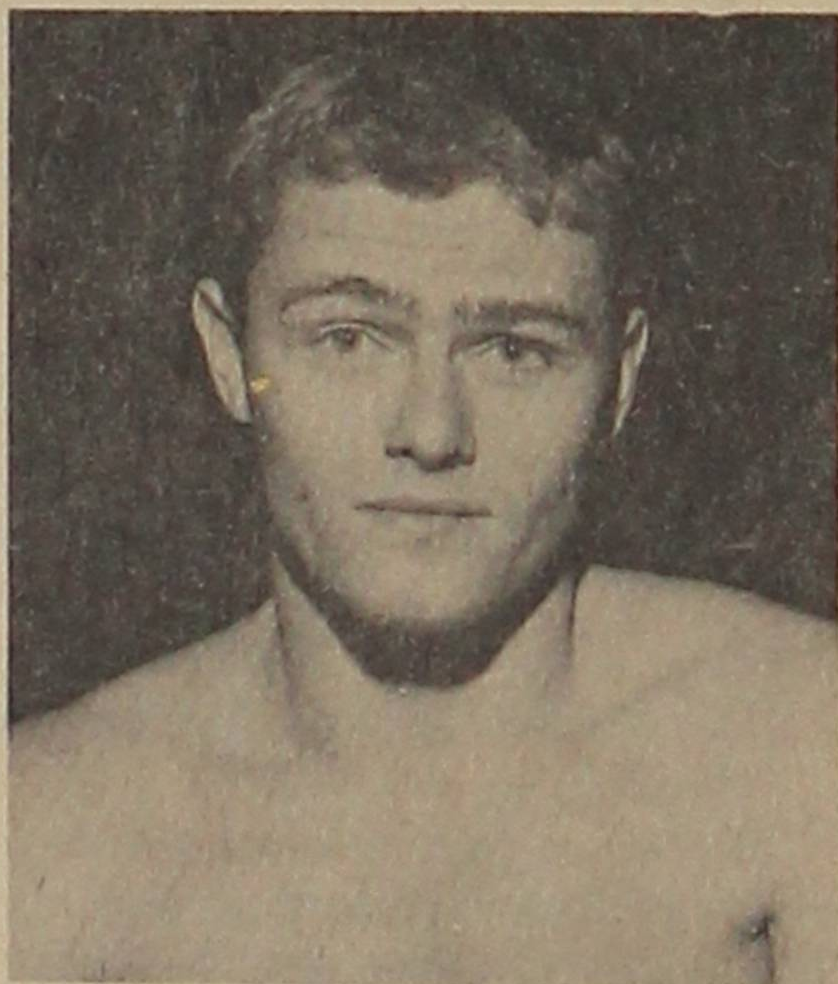

The first 28 minutes of play were scoreless with neither team threatening the other's goal line. But with two minutes remaining in the opening half, and Central's offense mired in the muck, a sensational 74 yard pass-run play from quarterback Phil Fitterer to Tacoma product Jack Curtwright produced the game's only score.

In the second half of action UPS began to move the ball with a vengeance. Moving mainly on the passing of Steve Maddocks the Loggers pushed the ball up and down the field but could never quite muster that little extra needed for a touchdown. Drives, four in number, fell short as the Loggers desperately tried to tie the game up.

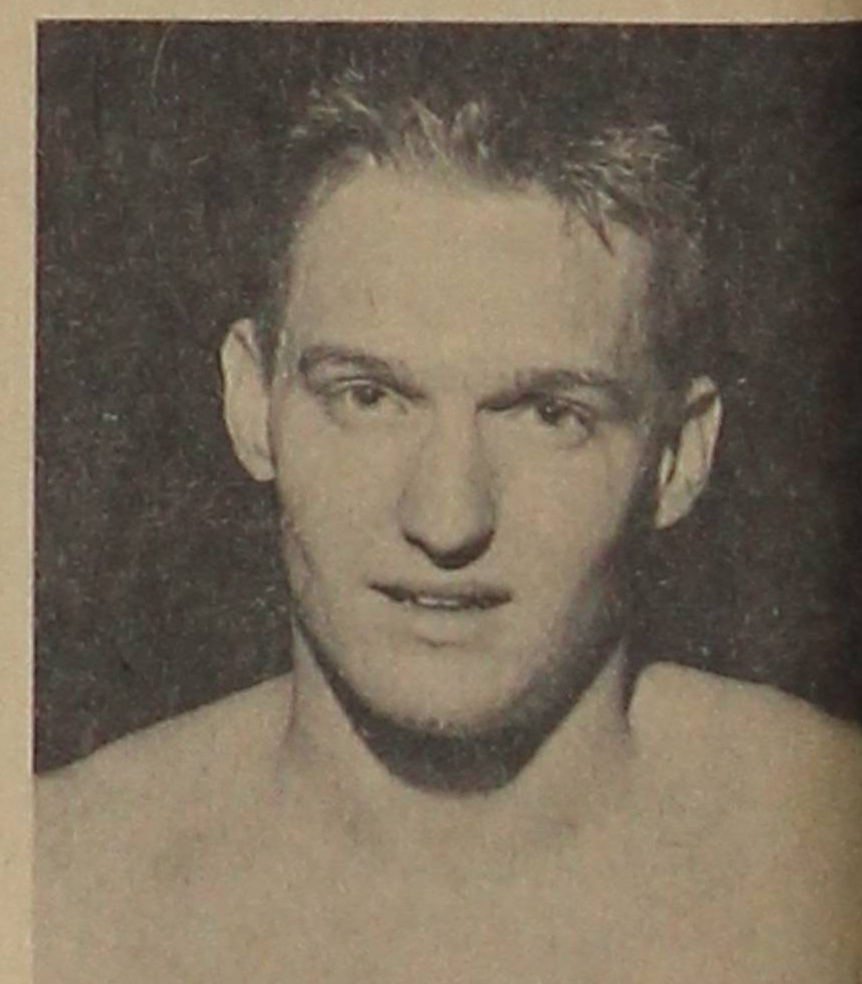

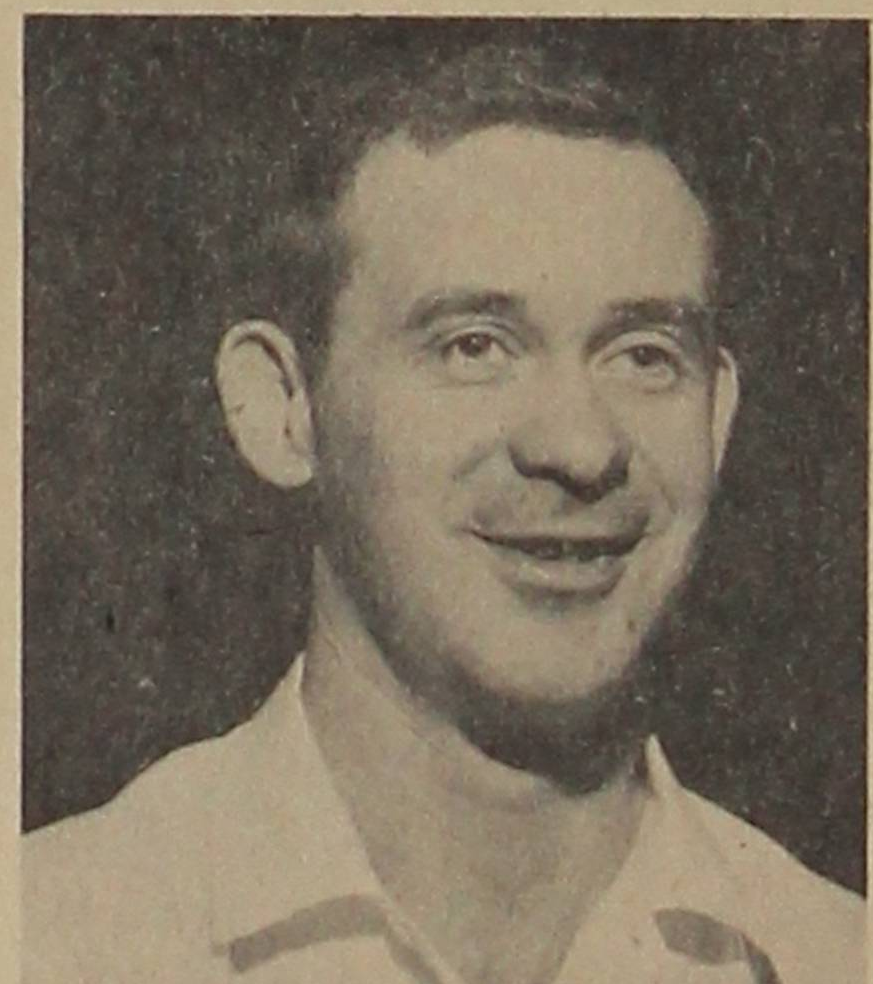

The last of these futile marches came with only seconds remaining on the clock as the Loggers ran out of downs on the Wildcats five yard marker. Time ran out on the contest with the 'Cats in possession of the ball on their own four yard line.

fensive platoon, it was the defensive unit which carried the fight to the Wildcats. This determined crew kept the 'Cats locked deep in their own territory for most of the game.

No standouts were singled out by coach John Heinrich as he expressed pleasure with the team's performance and displeasure with the final outcome.

Byron Stauffer, Coach Don Duncan, and John Jewell are only two weeks away from the start of another title defense of their swimming championship.

Student support of the Puget Sound athletic teams has been a topic of concern for many years now. Over the past several seasons attendance at Logger athletic contests has improved upon occasions, but the percentage of UPS student body members attending these events is still relatively low in comparison with the other schools in our conference. This past football season has been one of the best, attendance-wise, that the school has experienced in many years. Despite the wind and rain that has accompanied the last few home games, students have still been faithful in sitting in the wet, open stands that constitute the football seating facilities. However when the Loggers journeyed to Lincoln Bowl to play cross-town rival Pacific Lutheran, a mere 60 fans followed the team.

Again, take the plight of our basketball team for example. The Loggers play an exciting brand of basketball under Coach Russ Wilkerson and are on the winning end of the final score more often than not, yet only about 15% of the students are willing to support the team. Weather is not a determining factor, since the UPS Memorial Fieldhouse is always well heated, well lighted and affords a better view of the action than does the football stands. WHAT IS THE CAUSE OF THIS APATHETIC SUPPORT? Is it the fact that students at UPS are not interested in athletics? The answer here is no. They turn out in larger numbers and under worse conditions to see the football team play. Is it the fact that studies are so pressing that the average student cannot afford a couple of hours off to support a school function? Again no. All but a few of the Loggers' basketball games are played on weekends. Is it the fact that there are too many other social activities competing with an all-school event? Herein may lie part of the answer, but it should not. The Student Activities Committee policies clearly state that intercollegiate athletic events are the first thing to be placed on the social calendar. It also definitely states that, "on the evening or afternoon of an intercollegiate athletic activity, social functions shall either end one-half hour before a home game or begin at least one-half hour after completion of the game."

There does not seem to be a clear, definite reason why students do not attend a school event that not only represents them and their institution and is of great enough importance to be the first thing on the social calendar. For the 200 or so students that are in attendance at nearly every game (it is always the same fans that come to each contest) Athletic Director John P. Heinrick and Coach Wilkerson thank you for your support. For the 1700 other student body members that rarely, if ever, come to a basketball game, it is their hope that you will consider this coming basketball season as an opportunity to support your school and to take advantage of an already paid for social activity. Remember, you have paid to see the Loggers play when you bought your student body card, so why not take advantage of the money you have already spent?

The Loggers open the season Saturday, Nov. 30 with the TAC Tournament at PLU's gym. The following Friday they play PLU, the only team in the league this year that could possibly keep the home forces from taking home the championship, on the PLU maples. The Loggers open their home schedule on Friday, Dec. 13 with an encounter with Lewis and Clark. Let's fill the Fieldhouse this season and completely kill the rumor that UPS students are apathetic when it comes to supporting their athletic teams.

Brian Stephens Trained By Peace Corps in Puerto Rico

How does one find himself on a four-day starvation hike in the verdant foothills of Puerto Rico, surrounded by wild bananas, oranges and friendly natives? Ask Brian Stephens, a UPS junior, who trained with the Peace Corps a year ago for 16 months.

Hailing from Greenbush, Minnesota, Brian was a sophomore when the nonchalantly took the Peace Corps aptitude test. While employed as a carpenter foreman in Chehalis a letter unexpectedly arrived stipulating that he had been accepted as a trainee and should report to Boston College.

At Boston he learned he was to be trained to serve in Peru in the barrades or slums of giant cities like Lima and Arequipa. As a Construction Expediter, his official task was to assist in community development, using readily available tools and materials — adobe, brick, woven grass and straw matting.

Peruvian Slums

Extensive slum areas burden these Peruvian cities, occupied predominantly by native Indians from the mountains. The Indians travel to the cities to eke out a living selling household articles like fruit, paper and fish.

They enjoy many of the new luxuries of running water, electricity and television, but reside in terribly dilapidated houses. Armed only with his bare knowledge, the Peace Corps member infiltrates such impoverished communities, seeks approval from the people and assists them to help themselves.

Peru, plagued with erratic government, constantly threatened by revolution, receives the largest number of Peace Corps cadets of all the Alliance-for-Progress nations. This, plus the dominance of the Roman Catholic religion and rampant socialist and leftist political groups, complicates the task of the Peace Corps worker.

Spanish and Incan

Concentrated courses in the Spanish language, and for some the Incan dialect, communist ideology, sociology, and the history, culture and geography of Peru greeted Brian at Boston College. For ten weeks of intensive study he and his colleagues were trained to work as part of a group.

In a country where ten families own 20% of the land, communism is quite attractive and cannot be ignored. Well aware of the communist line, the trainees are taught to reason with the communist sympathizers, few of which are enlightened in communist doctrine. The primary objective, once they have reached Peru, is to befriend the true community leaders, dejuces, and gain the confidence of the rest of the community through them. It is a process carried out on a person-to-person basis, carefully avoiding any alienating actions. Trainees participate with the natives in their religious festivals and holidays. Here, especially, is the trainee warned not to shun the Peruvian's culture.

Puerto Rico

Upon completing their scholastic training at Boston College, the trainees travel to Puerto Rico where they participate in three weeks of boot camp followed by a concluding three weeks of practical work with low-class Puerto Rican families. The Peace Corps presently uses Mexican cities for the same purpose.

The boot camp is conducted along the lines of an English outward-bound school; everyone tries to the best of his ability. Specific levels of physical fitness are not set, rather, each trainee determines his own limitations. Trainees are not required to complete the four-mile hike or five-mile swim, they merely go as far as they can. This was demonstrated by a middle-aged Corps official from Washington D.C. who fizzled out on the hike after the first day.

Psychiatric Observation

The following three weeks of practical work in Puerto Rican slums enable the trainees to master the language more completely and allow the officials to make a last evaluation of each trainee. Acceptance as a trainee is no guarantee of active service. Each Corps group of about 70 is under constant surveillance of three psychologists. At four specific meetings during the training their reports are evaluated and dismissals made. Five-sixths of the trainees are accepted; in Brian's group only 28 of the original 62 completed the course. Accepted for active service, Brian postponed serving because of family illness.

San Juan Fun

Some recreation accompanies the intensive regime of study and labor. The Corps allots a number of weekends in the resort capitol of Puerto Rico, San Juan, to each member. Cut-rate rents at lush hotels like the Americana and refreshing Cuba libras made from coke, lime and rum, afford many festive occasions. One such expedition resulted in a humorous folly because of the trainees' ignorance of native custom. Eyeing a circle of attractive senoritas prominating around the square, some of the male trainees joined in the dance. They were promptly informed by the native hustlers that they were only to observe and subtly introduce themselves after the dance.
