

Analysts To Dissect '64 Election

By Cheryl Hulk

Some of the most distinguished scholars in the country will assemble on the UPS campus next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday for the first annual Public Affairs Forum. This year's forum entitled "Election 1964: a Retrospective Analysis," has as its purpose the re-evaluation of the 1964 Presidential election.

The forum which will be held from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. April 13-15 in Jones Hall Auditorium is designed for the students and will be open to the public only after the students have been seated.

Originally initiated by former ASB president Bill Ramseyer, the symposium has been organized by a student-faculty committee headed by Tom Spring and Dr. Earl Kruschke, Assistant Professor of Political Science.

Tuesday's program will include talks by Dean Burch, former chairman of the Republican National Committee; Robert Dahl, Ph.D., Sterling Professor of Political Science at Yale University; Harry M. Scoble, Jr., Ph.D., assistant professor of Political Science at UCLA; Aaron Wildavsky, Ph.D., assistant professor of Political Science, University of California at Berkeley, and Herbert Altshull, news analyst, KING Broadcasting Company.

The first day's discussion will include "Presidential Campaigning: Past and Future" (Burch), "The Pre-Convention Mood of the Country" (Dahl), "The Politics of the National Party Conventions" (Scoble), "The Goldwater Phenomenon: Purists, Politicians and the Future of the Two-Party System" (Wildavsky), and "The Press and the Politicians: A Two Way Street."

Wednesday's program will feature discussions by Mr. John M. Baily, Democratic National Committee Chairman; Hugh A. Bone, Ph.D., Professor of Political Science, and chairman of the Department of Political Science, University of Washington; Mr. Charles Herring, news director, KING Broadcasting Company, and Mr. Herb Robinson, news editor, KOMO Television.

Topics will include "The Human Element in Politics (Bailey), "Themes of the Campaign in Historical Perspective" (Bone), "The Role of Television in the 1964 Election (Herring), and "The Impact of Broadcasting Election Returns on Voting Patterns" (Robinson).

The symposium will conclude Thursday with talks by Angus Campbell, Ph.D., professor of Psychology and Sociology, and director of the Survey Research Center at the University of Michigan; Lewis Froman, Ph.D., assistant professor of Political Science, University of Wisconsin; Mr. Samuel Lubell, faculty member of the Graduate School of Journalism at Columbia University, director, Opinion Reporting Workshop, and political columnist; and Mr. Samuel Sharkey, news director of KIRO Incorporated.

Discussion topics for this final day will include "Who Voted and Why: An analysis of Candidate Support" (Campbell), "The Current Make-up of the Parties in Congress — the Implications" (Froman), "The New Era in American Politics: The Significance of the Johnson Victory" (Lubell), and "Politicians and Press: the Mutual Regard." (Sharkey).

Silver Seals To Present Water Show This Weekend

The Silver Seals, UPS's girls' synchronized swim team, are presenting their annual water show this Friday and Saturday, April 9 and 10, at 8 p.m. in the Hugh Wallace Memorial Pool. This year's show is based on the theme of "The American Scene," and the numbers will typify the characteristics of some of the various parts of the United States. Among these will be New York, Texas, Chicago, North Carolina, San Francisco, and others.

Members for the Silver Seals are selected each year from the girls who participate in the try-outs, which are held each fall and spring. Approximately 30 girls participate in the annual show, making it quite a spectacular affair.

The officers for this year are Chris Trip, president; Carolyn Crothers, show chairman; Judy Rowe, secretary; Amy Carlson, treasurer; Janis Cratsenberg, publicity chairman; and Caroline Riekema, technical director. Miss Alice Bond is the group's advisor.

Senator Spots To Be Decided

Elections for Class Senator are scheduled for next Tuesday and Thursday, April 13 and 15. Class meetings are planned for noon on these two days for nominations and balloting. Meeting schedule is as follows: seniors, J304; juniors, J203; sophomores, J4; and freshmen, Howarth 215.

Berkeley Prof. Lectures Here

Dr. Peter H. Odegard, professor of political science at the University of California in Berkeley, has been chosen to deliver the 13th annual Brown & Haley lectures at UPS April 13 through 15. A former president of Reed College, Dr. Odegard will speak on "Political Power and Social Change."

The 63-year-old political scientist is the author of numerous books and magazines dealing with government. Among the books he has written are "Pressure Politics the Story of the Anti-Saloon League," "The American Public Mind," "American Politics — a Study in Political Dynamics," "Prologue to November 1940," "The Power to Govern," and most recently, "The American Public: Its Government and Politics."

Born in Kalispell, Mont., Dr. Odegard earned his bachelor's degree at the University of Washington in 1922 and his master of arts there in 1923. He received his doctorate in 1928 from Columbia University, where he taught from 1924 to 1928.

He later taught at Williams College, Ohio State University, Amherst College and Stanford University. During World War II he served as a consultant and later as an assistant to the Secretary of the Treasury. From 1945 to 1948 he served as president of Reed College in Portland. He has been professor of political science at the University of California since 1948.

Among many activities, he is a senator of Phi Beta Kappa, the scholastic honorary, and a past president of the American Political Science Association. He has received honorary degrees from Amherst, Oriel College of Oxford University, Ohio State University and the University of Pittsburgh.

Dr. Odegard will discuss "No Single Thing Abides — But All Things Change" in his first lecture; "Political Science — Knowledge for What?" in the second; and "The Use and Abuse of Political Power" in the third.

All three lectures, scheduled for 8 each evening in Jones Hall Auditorium, will be complimentary to the public.

The lecture series was established through a grant from the Haley family to UPS. Dr. Lyle S. Shelmidine, chairman of the UPS history department, is in charge of arrangements.

UW Biologist Speaks Today

"The Development of the Human Heart" will be the topic discussed by Dr. Richard J. Blandau, nationally known embryologist, on Friday, April 9.

Dr. Blandau is scheduled to speak in the UPS Music Recital Hall at 8 p.m. Prior to his lecture, Phi Sigma will be host to a science exhibit in Howarth Hall from 6:30-8 p.m. Both presentations are complimentary.

Dr. Blandau is Professor, Department of Biological Structure, School of Medicine at the University of Washington. He is nationally known for his many professional papers on heart, biological research, and as a teacher.

CONCERNING THE FORUM . . .

By Bill Ramseyer

Through our university education it becomes quite evident that our generation will inherit many complex social and political programs. As we enter life as citizens in our American communities, we will be called upon to help solve these problems. Certainly, prior knowledge or insight concerning these issues would be of particular value to both the community and the citizen, as a more founded basis for complete understanding would result. The original conception of this Forum is based on this premise. It is with this spirit that an analysis and related prognosis of the past presidential election is presented to and by the Associated Student Body of the University of Puget Sound.

This symposium affords those who attend significant educational opportunities. Students will be exposed to a handful of the top minds in the field of political science. These professors will deliver original research to be published later in their own volumes. In addition to the academicians' approach, the two national party chairmen will relate to us the actual operation of nationwide political organization. The local news directors of American Broadcasting Company, Columbia Broadcasting Company, and National Broadcasting Company and a prominent national political columnist will discuss the role and influence of public opinion and mass media.

The writer strongly urges all who desire to become enlightened in the national political milieu to attend this stimulating symposium. Seldom are university students exposed to such a high caliber of intellectualism and authority. The Forum Committee looks forward with enthusiasm and pride in presenting this Public Affairs Forum. We should establish this Forum for investigating other social and political problems in the years to come. If properly executed, it would assure us individual distinction among the community of American universities and colleges. May this mature approach to social and political education and reform always be indicative of our university.

As students in this university, we should constantly keep in mind that the ever-progressing means of communication have taken our small sphere of local knowledge and turned it into a vast universe of national affairs. Therefore, it is necessary for each and every one of us to use all forms of communication to our best advantage. In my mind, the impending symposium is one of the most advantageous forms of enlarging student outlook. In order to be included in the group of avant garde students, we should encourage and demand that a symposium of this nature be included in the co-curricular life of the university. With such co-curricular activities, we should be reminded that there is always room for improvement and expansion.

NEWS AND VIEWS

By Dennis Hale

Heavy rain and blustery wind. Such subtle signs symbolize the coming of Spring in the paradisaic Northwest country. Spring on this verdant Puget Sound campus means the appearance of Cross Currents, the annual magazine of student opinion and literary writing.

Cross Currents for 1965 presents a striking contrast to last year's collection of recondite poetry, morose prose and a cover sketch that resembled a scene from the Hiroshima ruins. The new issue offers an effervescent variety of creative art that is as readable as it is refreshing.

The new issue of Cross Currents, which is to be released this month, differs from its predecessor in format, content and general mood. This metamorphosis is even more amazing when it is noted that both magazines were edited by the same person, Dave Holloway.

Realistic, moving modes of expression have replaced the esoteric pedantry of last year's magazine. Typical of this pervading realism is Richard Crow's poem, "Truckin'". Reminiscent of scenes in Steinbeck's Grapes of Wrath, the poem begins with this quatrain:

Asphalt . . . rubber . . . nylon
 . . . steel

The concrete is cracked,
 The asphalt's hot as fire,
 And the rubber's wearin' thin
 On the Nylon tires.

For the first time a dramatic work has been published in the magazine "Esophagus Boss", a farce parody of Oedipus Rex, satirizes Madison Avenue's megalomania for sales. Larry Johnson's terse drama opens in the Chewinggum Building in Osmosis, the capital of Poo, where Esophagus, the president of Polybra Corporation, Phobia Happenstance, his mother, and Chlorox, a false programmer, open the conversation.

Other highlights of the magazine include an introduction by Edward Field, the poet who visited UPS last fall, "Some Brief Comments on the Participation of Women in Politics" by Earl R. Kruschke and short stories by Leonard Stalker and David Holloway. Dan Hill, Jim Wylder and Steve Culvertson contribute sketches. Photographs are used for the first time.

Brown and Haley Lecture

Don't let the lofty, scholarly ring of the title of the Brown and Haley lectures scare you away! The speaker, Dr. Peter H. Odegard, is a painstaking researcher who likes to document his ideas with lucid examples.

In the American Public Mind, one of Mr. Odegard's first volumes published during the early phase of the Great Depression, the author demonstrates this ability to educate and entertain simultaneously. He concludes a discussion about American universities with this quote on alumni associations: "The average University Club in America could more easily dispense with its library than its bar." Earlier in the same chapter he defines a college as a "pleasant interlude of four years between adolescence and material acquisition." If Mr. Odegard's insights into the 60's are as keen as his insights on the 30's his lectures will prove stimulating.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"WELL, I FINALLY GOT YOU A BLIND DATE — BUT YOU'LL HAVE TO PICK HER UP YOURSELF."

AAC Needs Student Interest

For the past five years an informal committee, known as the "Committee of Fourteen," has attempted to deal with problems of cheating, plagiarism and other forms of academic dishonesty. This year was no exception. Last fall another committee tried to investigate the possibility of an Honors Code at the University of Puget Sound. Early this semester the Honors Code Committee and the Committee of Fourteen combined to form the Academic Affairs Committee.

The Academic Affairs Committee is attempting to curb academic dishonesty and raise academic standards. Its membership is composed of student, faculty and administrative personnel. In the first six meetings they have discussed possibilities of an honors code, black book, and to act as a sounding board for student complaints.

The power of such a committee comes from the students themselves. Even though several appeals for student opinion the TRAIL have been made, there has been little response.

If the Academic Affairs Committee is feasible and desirable and reflects student feeling, comments should be submitted to Russ McCurdy, in care of the TRAIL. People interested in being members of such a committee are also encouraged to contact McCurdy.

We Get Letters

To the Editor:

Re: "News and Views" by Dennis Hale:

Your column in the March 19, 1965, Trail concerning Dr. Sheldine was, to anyone who knows him, perhaps humorous. Further, it could also be more than a little wounding. This gentle, reserved man is a former professor of mine and, after having three classes from him, I know him well enough to be sure that such an article might not be exclusively funny.

A few weeks ago in a series of random comments, your column referred to a "mass migration of freshmen" from Mr. J. R. Berry's English classes. Apparently this was an intended quip, but if interpreted seriously (as it was in at least several instances) the reader is given a distorted view; particularly since Mr. Berry is new to the campus this year and not generally well-known among the students.

I wonder whether such "humor" is really that in any case, because unless you know the individual involved you'll miss much of the allusion; if you do know him, you can hardly condone such a lash — which is the effect — at sensitive feelings. I love satire, but I question that it is in perfect taste when it must be excruciatingly funny. The Trail has enough merits that it does not need to bite its readers in order to delight them.

Sincerely yours,
 Frances Porter

UPS Students Find Out How 'Other Half' Lives

On Friday, March 26, 33 UPS students boarded a bus for San Francisco in the trial run of a brand-new UPS program entitled Social Concerns Seminar. The purpose of this seminar was to directly involve a few of our students with the existing social problems in certain areas, rather than show a mass of students a superficial once-over view. A more significant purpose, however, was obtaining a change in perspective.

The first stop was Chinatown, with Nelson Chang, a UPS student, as our informative host. We were guests of Crystal Springs Methodist Church in San Mateo and stayed with families from the church.

On Sunday Reverend Albertson gave a sermon on "The Need for Exhaling." This was followed by a quick tour of San Francisco.

Monday brought a visit to Hunter's Point Methodist Church, where we met an Episcopal minister, who was faced with the problems of a rapidly developing Negro ghetto. In the Mission District, we met Rev. Donald Ganoung, who assists those people in a mixed ghetto. We stayed four nights at Hospitality House, cooking our own meals. (try 2½ gallons of milk per meal!)

At Youth for Service, an intelligence agency, we met with a 25 year old ex-gang member, T-Bone, who acquainted us with such terms as "from the get got he was at the nity gritty" (he got down to brass tacks from the very first). The main idea T-Bone had for us was that the kids themselves had to feel the sense of responsibility because they have no responsible person with whom they could identify. One of the projects of Youth for Service was the conversion of a 100 by 90 ft. dump into a park, now valued at $25,000 within the span of a year.

We spent that evening in North Beach, walking in groups of four, exploring "coffee and confusion," art and book shops, alleys, the "hungry i," and many more.

On Tuesday we met with two men at Glide Methodist Church, the "traditional" church in the city. There we learned about the homosexual community in San Francisco. We had lunch in the city and then toured Grace Cathedral on Nole Hill. That night we visited "Freedom House" in Fillmore District. Pleasant Carson, a 23 year old Negro with two years of college, runs it on the theory that the white should educate their own people and the Negro theirs. In other words, how can a white person, who has no connection with a ghetto, understand the problems in such a district?

We visited Precarious Vision, a coffee house under the management of Glide Foundation. No liquor or marijuana is allowed by an unwritten agreement among its most frequent participants. As one young man told us, "It was an open door for a lonely man in a big city."

We then went upstairs to meet with O'linn McGuire, who is a minister and director of Intersection—an arts center where music, drama, film, and the visible arts will find a home and where dialogue concerning arts and their significance can be discussed.

Wednesday we went to Berkeley and the Pacific School of Religion. We were guests of the Crystal Springs Methodist Youth Fellowship for a potluck dinner and a discussion of college life.

Thursday was a free day, devoted to shopping and touring.

On Friday the bus took us to Sausalito and the Golden Gate Park. We explored Berkeley campus on Saturday.

Sunday we attended church at Mt. Tabor Presbyterian Church and were guests of Jean Russell in Portland.

We arrived at UPS at 4 p.m.—tired, yes; but instilled with a whole new perspective. To return to California in a similar capacity — maybe someday; to talk to as many UPS students as possible about this trip—this is our hope.

Those attending were Tom Jobe, Jane Jobe, Bob Albertson, Ann Fitzgerald, Jo Baxter, Keith Weeks, Cherry Craig, Dennis Bakke, Bonnie Steusy, Al Campbell, Ann Petterson, Alice Glenn, Chris Butler, Bob Sprague, Al Osmanski, Voski Chakarian, John McKnight, Kittie Zittel, Lorrie Cunningham, Linda Ortmeier, Craig Killam, Steve Helgerson, Tom Albright, John Hightower, Diane Longenecker, Meribeth McKain, Jeanne Russell, Clarice Myers, John Deacon, Jana Lau, Judy Ayer, Marilyn Lones, Wayne Martin.

Lawyer To Speak Next Tuesday

Martin Wolf, one of the leading trial lawyers in the Pacific Northwest and a member of the law firm of Lycette, Diamond and Sylvester, will speak to students and faculty Tuesday, April 13 at 10 a.m. in room 8 of the Student Center.

Mr. Wolf, who graduated from Georgetown University Law School in Washington, D.C., will talk on the field of the trial lawyer with emphasis on insurance cases. His talk will include suggestions to under-graduate students interested in legal careers, on courses to take in preparation for law school.

This talk is one in a series of lectures by business and professional leaders in the Puget Sound area sponsored jointly by the Epsilon Nu chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi, and the UPS Women's Business Club.

Holloway Given WW Fellowship

Dave Holloway, a senior at UPS, has been awarded a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship for the coming academic year. Holloway was one of 1,395 seniors chosen from 11,000 faculty nominated students. The fellowship covers full tuition and fixed fees plus $1,800 for living expenses. It can be used at any U.S. or Canadian graduate schools.

Holloway, an English major, plans to use the fellowship at the University of Chicago where he will continue his work in English. Dave, the son of Rev. and Mrs. Lloyd Holloway of Spokane, has achieved an accumulative gpa of 3.8. He is also serving his second year as editor of the UPS literary magazine, Cross Currents, and is a former member of the C.B. judiciary committee. He was selected a member of Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities, and is in the honors program here. Dave feels that being a member of the honors program at UPS was a major influence in preparing him for the interview leading to the fellowship.

The Woodrow Wilson Fellowship is the largest private source of support for advanced work in the liberal arts. It has been financed, since expansion to its present size in 1958, by two Ford Foundation Grants.

Debaters Tour

The UPS Debate and Speech Squad traveled to Portland last week for the Portland State Tournament.

The squad, composed of students from Mr. Jack Kingsley's speech classes, participate in college and university tournaments throughout the west. Seven competitors receiving honors at the Portland tournament were Tina Johnson, first place for oratory; Joanne Pierson, third place for oratory. The two girls also won three and lost three rounds in debate.

Though the squad as a whole didn't take any honors, Mr. Kingsley stated he was pleased and confident that the squad could and would come away with some first place awards from future tournaments.

Upcoming tournaments will take the squad to Montana State University and Gonzaga University.

JimBoJohn Trio Reappearing In Cellar 10 Performance

By Rich Mulkey

They're back again! Once again Cellar 10 will reverberate with the sounds of the JimBoJon Trio. Since their last performance here, which packed the small night-club like room with a standing room only audience, the three have been playing engagements in the area.

Among the most prominent were Christmas parties at the Bank of California and the Atlas Foundry, a concert at Stuart Junior High, an installation of the Industrial Conference Board at the Hilton Inn, where they played to an audience of about 400 prominent businessmen including Governor Evans, and at the 11-11 Club of Seattle. The trio is now returning to Friday-at-Four today in the Cellar for a third performance.

The members of the Trio are Jim Pierson on banjo, Bob Anderson as lead voice and John Anderson on lead guitar. They have recently recorded two tapes, the latest at Lakewood Sound at Villa Plaza, and have been referred to four recording companies in Los Angeles.

Asked about their feeling concerning the audience reaction here at UPS, Jim replied "tremendous." He also said that Cellar 10 "isn't the Opera House" but with the new sound system "it's more than satisfactory."

The Trio had sung together just for fun for the past two years, but didn't get organized until September '64. Since then the group has rehearsed a minimum of eight to ten hours a week polishing routines and songs.

The Trio's future plans include a tour of the United States this summer pending confirmation from one of the four recording companies. Depending upon their reception on this tour, Bob and Jim will either continue their college careers or will stay in the entertainment field for a year or two. John will graduate in June. No matter what happens, none of the group wants to make a career of entertainment.

At today's Friday-at-Four, the Trio will sing a new song which was written by Ian and Sylvia called "Long Time Man," along with other new additions to their repertoire. All in all, a tremendous performance is assured.

Love Is Tops On Word Poll

By Collegiate Press Service CHICAGO (CPS—"Love"

is more popular than "hate and "war" is more popular than "peace." This surprising result was found by scholars from the University of Chicago and the University of North Carolina who recently compiled a list of the 3,300 most popular words in the English language.

Far and away the word that receives the most frequent use is "is."—yes it is, it is is that is. Although the results may seem a bit confusing to enunciate, this result is not unlike the rest of the report, which found "man" to be more popular than "woman" but found that "mother" had a considerable edge over "father."

The researchers discovered that "is" pops up 439.2 times in every ten thousand words. "The," "and," and "to" follow in general usage in that order.

The scholars also decided that vocation has little influence on vocabulary; ditchdiggers and college professors speak essentially the same. Despite the fact that Webster's lists half a million words, people stick pretty much to the same old words.

Dean Burch

Dean Burch, former national chairman of the Republican committee will speak on "Presidential Campaigning: Past and Future."

Burch, 37-year-old Tucson, Arizona attorney, became the 44th Chairman of the Republican National Committee on July 17, 1964. Before his elevation to the Party helm as the personal choice of Senator Barry Goldwater, 1964 GOP Presidential nominee, Mr. Burch had served the Senator as assistant general campaign director and formerly as administrative assistant. In the final weeks of the California primary campaign he headed the team that sparked the Goldwater victory drive.

Mr. Burch, who was born in Enid, Oklahoma, on December 20, 1927, was assistant to the Attorney General of Arizona, 1953-1955. In 1955 after Senator Goldwater had sought the advice of Arizona Republicans in the selection of an administrative assistant, Mr. Burch won the post and went to Washington. In that job he participated with the Senator in the Rackets Committee investigation of labor union practices. Four years later he became a member of the law firm of Dunseath, Stubbs and Burch with offices in Tucson.

In November, 1963, when the Goldwater forces were taking form, Mr. Burch was invited by the Senator to assist Denison Kitchel, director of the Goldwater-for-President organization. Previously he had worked as regional campaign manager for Governor Paul Fannin of Arizona and had been active in Senator Goldwater's successful campaign for reelection to the Senate in 1958.

While Br. Burch attended Galileo High School in San Francisco, he lived at Alcatraz, the now abandoned penal institution in San Francisco Bay, where his father was employed as a guard.

Burch's higher education was delayed by service in the armed forces. He enlisted in the Army as a private in January, 1946, and was commissioned as a Second Lieutenant in October, 1946. He served with the 7th Cavalry Regiment in Tokyo. He was discharged from the Army in 1948 and holds the rank of reserve Major in the Judge Advocate General's Corps. Mr. Burch completed his education at the University of Arizona and the University of Arizona Law School, receiving his LLB in 1953.

As his law practice prospered, Mr. Burch fulfilled a long-time ambition to design his own home, a territorial style house which was erected in Tucson. He journeyed to Mexico to obtain the special type doors he wanted. Now the family lives in Washington, D.C.

Mr. Burch is married to the former Patricia Meeks, daughter of Col. Richard E. Meeks, a retired Air Force officer. Mrs. Burch is a former school teacher. The couple have three children: A daughter, Shelly, 6; a son, Dean Alexander, 2; and a daughter, Diane, born on November 4, 1964.

Burch is a tennis enthusiast and an avid reader when he can find the time. Some years ago he became interested in flying as the result of his association with Senator Goldwater, a Major General in the U.S. Air Force Reserve. Coached by the Senator, he won his wings.

Lewis Froman

Dr. Lewis Froman, assistant professor of Political Science, University of Wisconsin, will discuss "The Current Make-Up of the Parties in Congress — the Implications" Thursday afternoon.

Dr. Froman, who graduated from Yale University, Magna Cum Laude in 1957, received his doctorate in Political Science from Northwestern University in 1960. He has served as a Teaching Assistant and Research Assistant at Northwestern University before going to the University of Wisconsin. Froman was a Congressional Fellow in 1963-64.

This distinguished political scientist, who is but 30 years old, is also a nationally known author and has written two books, People and Politics: an analysis of the American Political System; and Congressmen and Their Constituencies.

He has also had numerous articles and reviews published in such journals as the "Journal of Higher Education," the "Journal of Politics," the "Western Political Quarterly," the "American Political Science Review," and the "Public Opinion Quarterly."

Dr. Froman recently returned from a year in Washington, D.C. where he collected data on Congress. The outcome of this and future research will be a book for Ralph Huitt's Study of Congress.

Dr. Froman is married and has one child.

Herb Robinson

Herb Robinson, news editor of KOMO Television, will discuss "The Impact of Broadcasting Election Returns on Voting Patterns" on Wednesday.

Robinson, who has been head of KOMO-TV News Bureau since its organization in 1953, appears nightly on Channel 4 newscasts; he also produces and moderates the weekly public affairs series, "Viewpoint," and the monthly documentaries for "Exploration Northwest."

The native Seattlite was graduated from the University of Washington in 1949 and received his MS from Columbia University's Graduate School of Journalism in 1950.

Robinson, who has a reputation as a working-press type of TV reporter, won the Sylvania Award for production of the nation's best local news program, "Deadline." The award was granted to Robinson and the KOMO-TV News Bureau following their coverage of the state delegations to the 1956 national political conventions.

Prior to entering the field of television, Robinson worked on the Seattle Times as a reporter and assistant feature editor.

He is married and has three children.

Aaron Wildavsky

Dr. Aaron Wildavsky, assistant professor of Political Science at the University of California, Berkeley, will speak Tuesday on "The Goldwater Phenomenon: Purists Politicians and the Future of the Two-Party System."

Wildavsky, a Fullbright scholar, received his doctorate from Yale University in 1959. Before going to California, he was an instructor and assistant professor in government at Oberlin College.

The well-known political scientist is also the author of five books and numerous articles. His books include Studies in Australian Politics, Dixon-Yates: A Study in Power Politics, The Politics as the Budgetary Process, Presidential Elections, and Leadership in a Small Town.

Dr. Wildavsky's articles have been published in such journals as the Public Administration Review.

Harry Scoble

Dr. Harry Scoble, assistant professor of Political Science at the University of California at Los Angeles, will discuss "The Politics of the National Party Convention" Tuesday.

Scoble graduated magna cum laude from Williams College in 1949 and received his doctorate from Yale University in 1957.

Before assuming his present position at UCLA, Dr. Scoble taught at Boston University, the University of North Carolina, and the University of Wisconsin. Recent professional activities have included participation in various political science conferences and seminars. He has also presented several papers and has acted as a consultant at many conventions.

Dr. Scoble's articles have appeared in such publications as the "Public Administration Review," "Boston University Bulletin," "Press and Politics," "Community Political Systems," and "American Political Science Review," among others.

The UCLA professor who is married and has three sons is currently planning to write a book to be entitled McCarthy Plus Ten. The book is about the late senator from Wisconsin and will include chapters on ultra-conservative political interest groups in the 1950's.

Angus Campbell

Dr. Angus Campbell professor of Psychology and Sociology, and director of the Survey Research Center at the University of Michigan, will discuss "Who Voted and Why: An Analysis of Candidate Support," Thursday afternoon.

Dr. Campbell, who received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in psychology from Stanford University in 1936, has been an instructor and assistant professor at Northwestern University, an assistant head of the Division of Program Surveys of the Bureau

Samuel Sharkey

Samuel Sharkey, Jr., News Director of KIRO Incorporated, will discuss "The General Role of Mass Media in Presidential Elections."

Sharkey comes to KIRO from KING in Seattle, where he was Managing Director of News for nearly two years. Prior to KING, Mr. Sharkey held the position of Editor of News and Night News Manager for NBC News in New York for eight years.

In addition to his top network post, Sharkey brings to KIRO Television and Radio a background of 20 years of professional experience as a newspaperman, including Foreign News Copy Editor and head of the National News Desk of the New York Times, and concurrent with his editorial positions at the Times, taught for eight years at Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism.

Sharkey is also on the National Board of Directors of the Associated Press Radio and Television Association and serves on the National Public Relations Committee of Sigma Delta Chi.

of Agricultural Surveys of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, Department of Agriculture, and has been a Fullbright Fellow at the Institute for Social Research in Oslo.

Campbell has written several books on political behavior, including The People Elect a President, The Vote Decides, Group Differences in Attitudes and Votes, and The American Voter.

His articles have appeared in the "American Science Review," "Scientific American," "International Journal of Opinion and Attitude Research," "Public Opinion Quarterly," and the "International Social Science Journal."

Campbell holds membership in the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and the American Association for Public Opinion Research, among many other honors.

Dr. Campbell, who is married and has three children, lists his major research interests as being political behavior, culture and personality, and survey research methodology.

EXPERTS CONVERGE ON UPS CAMPUS

John Bailey

John M. Bailey, chairman of the Democratic National Committee will speak on "The Human Interest Element in Politics," Wednesday.

Ask any politician to characterize John Moran Bailey, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and the chances are the reply will be: "He's a pro!" Ask any political writer the same question and you are likely to get the same answer.

When he was unanimously elected Chairman on January 21, 1961, President Kennedy told the National Committee meeting: "We are getting someone . . . who understands what the Party can do."

Bailey learned his profession in Connecticut, which in earlier years was regarded as a Republican stronghold. He started on the bottom step in his home town of Hartford more than 30 years ago, a persuasive young man ringing doorbells. He was personable, wide-shouldered and wide-smiling, and he had been a star athlete in college. He had a Harvard law degree but not a Harvard accent. He believed in his Party, its candidates, and its principles. People — even Republicans — listened to him. They listened, but for a long time most of Connecticut continued to vote Republican.

In 1931, John Bailey was appointed Secretary to the Mayor of Hartford, and in 1932 became a member of the Democratic State Central Committee. He served as an appointed Hartford judge from 1933 until 1941, and in 1946 was appointed Connecticut State Chairman.

In 1956 Bailey helped lead the drive to name John F. Kennedy candidate for Vice President at the Democratic Convention. By then national leaders realized that a "pro" had developed — a tough-minded tireless political realist who loved the game of politics and played it in a champion's style.

In the 1960 maneuvering for delegates to the National Convention, Bailey was again in Kennedy's corner, a trouble shooter on difficult local situations as well as overall advisor on general strategy. One of his first coups was to win upstate New York for the Kennedy forces. In The Making of the President, 1960, the author Theodore H. White described this operation as "an over-the-border political raid unmatched in domestic politics since Huey Long raided Arkansas from Louisiana."

During Bailey's term of office he has innovated schools for Congressional candidates held in 1962 and 1964 and a special program now in effect to help newly elected members of Congress and incumbents in marginal districts.

Communication efforts were also greatly expanded under his Chairmanship. A radio news service, inaugurated in 1964, supplied as many as 1,000 news feeds daily to stations all across the country and political news of special interest was dispatched to the news media in written form by teletype, hand delivery and mail.

Another innovation during his term of office was the use of closed circuit television to keep the delegates and guests at the 1964 Democratic National Convention, the largest in the history of either party, apprised of helpful Convention activities held in addition to the regular Convention sessions.

John Bailey was born in Hartford, Connecticut, November 23, 1904, and if there is such a thing as learning politics in the cradle, he did. His mother, Mrs. Louise Bailey, fought for women's right to vote. His father, Michael Bailey, M.D., served on the Hartford Board of Education, the Common Council, and the Board of Aldermen.

Bailey's formal education included St. Peter's Parochial School, Hartford Public High School, Hartford Public High School, and Catholic University. In 1929, the same year he graduated from Harvard Law School, he was admitted to the Connecticut bar and became an active Democratic Party worker.

He is a member of the law firm of Bailey, Wechsler & Shea in Hartford and is a nationally recognized authority on constitutional law and, quite naturally, election laws. He has served as a Statute Revision Commissioner, and as a Commissioner of Uniformity of Legislation in the United States. In these posts he has continuously fought for the right to vote for every American. He has played an important part in breaking down local barriers disenfranchising citizens, and this battle continues.

His affiliations include: Board of Directors, St. Francis Hospital; Founders Committee, University of Hartford; Board of Directors, Catholic University Alumni Association; Board of Directors, Hartford Chamber of Commerce; Board of Trustees, Trinity College; Fourth Degree member, Knights of Columbus; member B. P. O. E.

News reporters who meet Bailey are often puzzled by apparent contradictions in appearance and thinking. At first he may seem a political stereotype. He is genial, wears dark suits and smokes big cigars, but his resemblance to the typical political boss ends there. He isn't a glad-hander or back-slapper, and while he has a phenomenal memory for facts, and is a walking encyclopedia of American political history, he often forgets names. His language is terse and colloquial. His friends suspect this is a deliberate effort to avoid classification as an egg-head. Typically he wears his eyeglasses pushed high up on his partially bald head. Joseph P. Lyford characterized him as "a journeyman psychologist and a poker player with a sense of humor."

Immediately after he succeeded to the Presidency, Lyndon Johnson asked Mr. Bailey to continue as Chairman of the Committee, and Mr. Bailey accepted.

Herb Altschull

J. Herbert Altschull, News analyst for both radio KING and KING-T.V., will speak on "The Press and the Politicians: a Two-Way Street."

Altschull presents "Perspective," a program of commentary and analysis, weekdays on KING Radio, and appears nightly as news analyst on KING-TV's "Early Addition" news program seen at 6:30 on Channel 5. He also appears on "Weekend Edition" at 6:30 p.m. on Saturday on KING-TV.

Altschull joined Associated Press, Philadelphia Bureau, in 1944 and in 1950 moved to Washington, D.C. In 1955 he was transferred to Germany as a special correspondent and subsequently was elevated to Chief of AP's Bonn Bureau.

Prior to joining KING, he served as a news specialist for the New York Times Sunday edition and as a public relations representative for the Government of West Berlin. In his staff position with KING, Altschull delivers analysis and commentary on news of local, regional, national and international significance.

During his 16 years with AP, Altschull covered top news stories of world-wide importance. While in Europe, he covered the Berlin Crisis and the Summit and Foreign Ministers Conferences in Geneva and Paris. During his five year stint in the Nation's Capitol, the Army - McCarthy hearings and the Supreme Court segregation decisions carried his by-line.

While with AP's Philadelphia

Bureau he gained extensive all-around reportorial experience . . . serving as reporter, deskman, feature writer and regional sports editor.

Born in Baltimore, Maryland, in 1924, Altschull attended high school in York, Pennsylvania, and graduated with honors from the University of North Carolina in 1942. A commissioned officer in the U.S. Marine Corps during World War II, he studied Japanese at the Navy Language School at the University of Colorado.

Robert Dahl

Robert A. Dahl, Sterling Professor of Political Science at Yale University will discuss the Pre-Convention Mood of the Country, Tuesday afternoon.

Professor Dahl is a leading authority on government. In 1962 he was named winner of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation Award, given annually for "The best book by an American on government, politics, or international affairs."

The award-winning book was "Who Governs? Democracy and Power in an American City," published in 1961 by the Yale University Press. The book is based on several-year's study of New Haven. Presentation of the award was made as one of the highlights of the American Political Science Association's 58th annual meeting.

Professor Dahl received a B.A. degree summa cum laude from the University of Washington in 1936; and his Ph.D. degree from Yale in 1940. He then entered government service as an Organization Analyst for the organization and management division of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Later he was assigned to the labor division of the War Production Board, and when he resigned from government work in 1943 to enter the Army he was with the Office of Civilian Supply.

In 1946 he was appointed to the Yale faculty as an Instructor in Political Science, and was promoted to Assistant Professor in 1947. He was awarded a Guggenheim Fellowship in 1950 and was also, in 1950, promoted to Associate Professor. He was promoted to full Professor in 1955.

Professor Dahl's first book, "Congress and Foreign Policy" (1950) argued that Congress needs an organizational overhauling to enable it to act more swiftly and efficiently in foreign affairs. His second book, "Atomic Energy and the Social Sciences," was published in 1951, with Ralph Brown, Associate Professor of Law at the Yale Law School, as co-author.

"Politics, Economics and Welfare — Planning and Politics — Economic systems Analyzed in Basic Social Processes," published in 1953, was written in collaboration with Charles E. Lindblom, Associate Professor of Economics at Yale.

Dahl was president of the New England Political Science Association for 1952-53, and has been a member of the executive council of the American Political Science Association. He holds membership in the American Society for Public Administration, and during 1949-50 was a consultant to the Connecticut Commission on State Government Organization.

Hugh Bone

Dr. Hugh Bone, chairman of the Political Science Department at the University of Washington will speak on "Themes of the Campaign in Historical Perspective," Wednesday afternoon.

Professor Bone is recognized throughout the country as an authority in the field of national politics and legislation. He taught at the University of Maryland from 1937 to 1942 and was a member of Queens College (N.Y.) faculty before coming to the University of Washington. He has been a visiting professor at Columbia and Stanford Universities and the University of Hawaii.

Dr. Bone is the author of several books and numerous articles for professional publications. His latest books are "Politics and Voters," published in 1963 in collaboration with Prof. Austin Ranney of the University of Wisconsin, and "Washington Politics," published in 1960 in collaboration with Prof. Daniel M. Ogden Jr. of Washington State University. Two of his best known books are "American Politics and the Party System," and "Party Committees and National Politics." The latter, published in 1958, was the result of a year's study (1954-1955) in Washington, D.C. under a Ford Foundation grant.

Samuel Lubell

Samuel Lubell, member of the faculty of the Graduate School of Journalism at Columbia University, director of the Opinion Reporting Workshop, and political columnist will speak Thursday on "The New Era in American Politics: The Significance of the Johnson Victory."

His first newspaper job was with the Long Island Daily Press. He then worked successively on the Washington Post, Richmond, (Va.) Times-Dispatch and the Washington Herald.

In 1938 Lubell began writing for magazines, becoming a regular contributor to the Saturday Evening Post. During World War II he worked with the Office of Facts and Figures and later with the Office of War Information. He also served as secretary of the Rubber Committee (The Baruch Committee). He was one of four assistants to James F. Byrnes, Director of Economic Stabilization, and was executive assistant to Bernard M. Baruch on all of his wartime studies and reports, including the Survey on Post-war Reconstruction and Economic Policies.

Lubell also served as a war correspondent for the Saturday Evening Post in the China-Burma India Theatre in 1944. In 1946 he traveled throughout Europe as a correspondent for the Providence Journal and North American Newspaper Alliance.

The first political article written by Lubell was a post-mortem of Roosevelt's third-term victory for the Saturday Evening Post. In it he said the Democrats had become the normal majority party in the country, and Roosevelt could be reelected for a fourth and a fifth term as easily as for a third.

Lubell has also done post-mortems of the 1948, 1950, 1952, 1954, 1956 and 1958 elections. These biennial analysis of the nation's voting have become the definite explanation of those elections and are used as such by historians, political scientists and others.

In 1952 for the first time, Lubell applied the technique he had developed for post-mortems of elections to reporting a pre-election campaign by systematically interviewing voters in strategic voting areas around the country. He has also reported the 1954, 1956, 1958 and 1960 campaigns in this fashion. His 1960 articles were taken by more than 100 newspapers including the Scripps-Howard, Gannett, Knight and Cowles chains.

During 1960, Lubell served as a special political analyst for NBC on primaries, conventions and the election. In previous years he had been a special commentator for both NBC and CBS. He also lectures extensively.

In 1958, Lubell applied his techniques of opinion reporting to surveying the impact of the recession on the public. Since then he has made surveys of other public problems regularly for his newspapers.

He has also done a number of special penetration surveys for commercial companies, covering such varied subjects as automobile buying, lawn products and newspaper readership. He manages these surveys through Samuel Lubell Associates, Inc.

His first book, The Future of American Politics, was written with the help of a Guggenheim Fellowship. Appearing in 1952, it was chosen by the American Political Science Association as the best book on government and democracy for the year. It was also published in England and translated into Korean. It has become a standard textbook in hundreds of universities and colleges.

Lubell is also the author of The Revolution in World Trade and Revolt of the Moderates, which was written with the help of a second Guggenheim Fellowship as a sequel to his first book on politics.

In the fall of 1958, Mr. Lubell was appointed to the faculty of the Graduate School of Journalism at Columbia University to be the Director of the School's new Opinion Reporting Workshop.

Charles Herring

Charles Herring, News Director of King Broadcasting Company, will speak Wednesday on "The Role of Television in the 1964 Election."

Herring became the Pacific Northwest's first TV newscaster when he inaugurated "The World Today," the area's first live television newscast, on KING-TV, Channel 5 in Seattle. Since then he has compiled an impressive list of outstanding news programs which have won not only personal awards, but have gained the trust and respect of the viewers of Western Washington.

Chuck presently is anchorman and newscaster of Early Edition, seen weekdays between 6:30 and 7 p.m. in the evening, writer and producer of "What's the Story" seen Sunday afternoons, and appears regularly on "Telescope," and does a five-minute news report on Radio KING.

In 1953 Herring was voted one of the "100 Newsmakers of Tomorrow" by Time Magazine. In 1955 the Seattle Junior Chamber of Commerce voted him one of the "Top 10 Young Men of Seattle." In 1956 he received one of six national awards given out by the English Speaking Union of the United States for promoting better understanding between the United States and the British Commonwealth of Nations. Of the six receiving that award, Chuck was the only one from west of the Mississippi.

Chuck headed up the KING-TV coverage of the 1956 State Primary Election and both of the 1956 state political conventions, all of which were nominated for the Sylvania Award. In the 1959 Washington State Legislature Legislative Session, Herring reported from Olympia, where KING-TV cameras recorded sessions of the legislature live for the first time in history in Washington State.

Herring has traveled far and wide gathering news and information for the TV viewers of the Pacific Northwest. In 1951 he toured Europe writing, producing and narrating a series of 15 shows which appeared on KING-TV. In 1953 he was off again, this time to Alaska, doing the same thing. While Chuck was in Alaska, Mt.

Spur, a latent volcano, blew up, covering Anchorage, 50 miles away, with a layer of cinders and volcanic dust. Chuck did a sound-on-film show from a plane flying around the volcano, and numbers that flight as one of the greatest thrills in his experience as a newsmen.

In the spring of 1957 Herring flew to Washington, D.C., to cover the Senate Rackets Committee investigation of former Teamster Union President Dave Beck. Coverage was both live and on film, and at one time eight stations in different parts of the nation were carrying the committee sessions as reported by Herring and a Washington, D.C., newsmen.

Bone (Cont.)

Dr. Bone is a past president of the Western Political Science Association and is also past president of the Pacific Northwest Political Science Association. He is director of the Washington State-Northern Idaho Center for Education in Politics, an agency to assist students to become active in political party work.

Born in Sycamore, Illinois, January 14, 1909, Dr. Bone was graduated from North Central College (Naperville, Illinois) in 1931. He holds a Master's degree from the University of Wisconsin and a Doctorate from Northwestern University.

The tankmen of the University of Puget Sound produced a 15 point spurt the last day of competition which enabled them to finish fourth for the second straight year in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletic swimming and diving championships held at Wisconsin State College in La Crosse, Wisconsin.

Macalester College captured the title with 71 points. Eastern New Mexico was second with 55 and Central Washington's Evergreen Conference champions third with 52 points. University of Puget Sound was fourth with 35 points, edging North Central Illinois and the University of Redlands by three and five points respectively.

The final day point spurge was due to outstanding performances by all the Loggers present at the meet. Lyndon Meredith, freshman from Stadium High School, finished second in the 100-yard backstroke in a time of 57.6. He set a UPS record of 57.4 in the preliminaries. This performance earned him a second-team NAIA All American rating in the 100 and 200 yard backstrokes.

Logger Bob Harper finished fifth in the 100 yard breaststroke to net points for UPS. The final points came from the 400 yard freestyle relay which John Jewell, Bob Harper, Dan Pender, and Doug Hanna all contributed to take third place in a time of 3:25.8.

The earlier days of competition saw Bob Harper taking third in the 200 yard breaststroke with a time of 2:09.8. Lyndon Meredith of UPS finished second in the 200 yard backstroke with a 2:09.8 clocking.

In the opening day of competition, Logger hero John Jewell, who shared the old record of 22.7 seconds in the 50 yard freestyle, placed sixth in the finals with a time of 22.9. The same day runner-up honors went to UPS in the 400 yard medley relay with a school record of 3:50.8 after posting the fastest qualifying time. Lyndon Meredith, Bob Harper, Doug Hanna, and John Jewell made up the relay team for the Loggers.

The fact that two Evergreen Conference teams were within the top five finalists in the meet says a lot for the quality of swimmers and coaches in the Northwest.

The University of Puget Sound tennis coach, Denny Hinton is conditioning his netters two hours a day in preparation for their next match April 10th against PLU.

Despite the team's impressive victory over McNeil Island last week, Hinton feels the team can improve. The only loss to McNeil Island was in the doubles where Hinton and Jim Janda bowed before their opponents 6-3. Coach Hinton promised that this occurrence would not happen again.

Hinton is very pleased with the team's progress at this point. Mike Harris, Bob Fargher, and Lynn Erickson, all victors from the McNeil match, show definite improvement in their net play according to Coach Hinton. Concerning his own game, Hinton remains quiet, though most the players felt Hinton is setting an example in desire which will undoubtedly prove an asset in the upcoming matches.

Coach Don Duncan is going to have to work if he wants to match his success with swimming teams to that in track. The track team, which has been sagging, will undoubtedly get into the swing of training now that Coach Duncan has returned from the NAIA swimming finals. The weather has shown an uncommonly affinity for the sun that is not usually prevalent this time of the year. These weather conditions are a tremendous boost for the cindermen. Thus the track team may provide Duncan with a climatic finish to his achievements in swimming this year.

Skiing season ended last Saturday for the slopemen of UPS. Though a much better team this year than last year's, coach Dick Peterson expressed some doubt concerning the past season. Despite an impressive win-loss record, Peterson felt the team could have done much better with a little more participation from the multitude of skiers here at UPS. As concerning next year, Dick said, "I am looking forward to a great year and a possible invitation to the Nationals if all runs as smoothly as it did this past season."

UPS Cindermen Succumb

The University of Puget Sound cindermen bowed before Pacific Lutheran University and Western Washington State College in an intercollegiate triangular track meet last Saturday at Bellingham.

UPS had 27 points to PLU's 59 and Western's 95 which clinched meet honors for them.

There were six double winners in which UPS had only one. Logger Joe Peyton won both the broad jump and high jump. Gale Pfueller and Mike Jones of Western Washington State College won double victories along with PLU's Craig Knutzen.

Local hero Joe Peyton was the meet's top scorer with 18 points, followed by the Lutes' Les Rucker and Wendell Brown with 15½ and 12½ points respectively.

Results

Lutheran Lief Jognsson passed the old official Evergreen Conference record in the triple-jump, when he jumped 45 feet ¼ inches, one inch over the old mark.

Logger Joe Peyton, who as yet hasn't turned out for track practices yet, leaped 23 feet 11½ inches in the broad jump, an inches short of the Evergreen standard and only a couple of inches less than the effort which placed him third in the NAIA meet last spring.

MULK'S MORGUE

By RICH MULKEY

Hey! They're dancing now! PLU, that is. Yes, they have finally broken down and started square dancing over there. Well, the type of dance fits anyway. But they still have chapel five days a week so that every individual can be holy. Why is it then that they use a boy-girl-boy-girl seating arrangement so that the boys can't talk to each other?

Not saying anything against the girls over there, but in order for the boys to go out they have to really dig on Friday nights. Literally, that is! But they're plucky though. (Just ask the keeper of the birds.)

One thing we can count on for sure is that PLU students will be around for a long time. You see, they aren't allowed to smoke so they will never contract lung cancer, emphesema or any of those deadly diseases. Just ask some of the Parkland store owners how little those students smoke.

Traditions are highly upheld over-there-across-the-town. Each graduating class, for instance, plants a rhododendron bush with a great amount of ceremony surrounding it. I can't figure out whether they are trying to keep Washington green or if they are just trying to make up for everything they did at the Point during the year.

I know that I'll probably get poison-pen letters from people if I don't say something good about the little people over there, so here's what I found good . . .

From the HOW TO SAVE MONEY DEPT.: Instead of spending all that money digging that big oil well out in front of Jones Hall, why doesn't the administration just skim off the thick, oily surface of the SUB coffee? Every pot, it seems, contains at least a cup full of the gooey junk, and each little cup mounts up. Just build a direct pipeline over to Howarth Hall and run it through the furnace. Even if it won't burn, maybe we could sell it as a fire extinguishing material and pay the heating bill that way. It could even make borax obsolete.

PARDON MY OPINION

If you had it to do all over again, would you come to UPS?

Margie Hubacka, senior, Aberdeen: Yes, because I thing I've gotten a fairly good, well-rounded education here. It depends on the person—you can get out of college what you want.

Wally Stricklin, junior, Tacoma: Yes, I would—people act like people here.

Barbara Whiting, freshman, Seattle: Yes, because of the friendly atmosphere of the students and faculty.

Larry Saxon, senior, Tacoma: Yes, I think for at least two years I would go to UPS. Then I think I'd transfer to a larger university for the benefits that a larger university has.

Jana Runnion, sophomore, Shelton: Yes, because UPS has given me the opportunity to establish myself to myself as an individual, as well as helping me to understand other people.

Jerry Blank, junior, Milwaukee, Wis.: Yes. After experiencing a larger university, I find that UPS has a warmer atmosphere. Because of its smallness, I've been able to make many friends in my one semester here.

Campus Groups Elect Officers

The new officers of the Chapel Chorus for the 1965-66 academic year have been chosen. They are Judi Lindberg, president; Paul Dennis, vice-president; Karyl Krah, secretary; Doug Smith, treasurer; Jim Estes, librarian; Harvey Ritchey, asst. librarian; Jane Mitchell, social chairman; Marcia Burdette, public relations; John Ortmeier, chaplain; Dorothy Ghylin, historian.

PEOPLE TO PEOPLE—

People to People officers for next year are Ken Ferguson, president; Sari Islam, vice president; Colleen Reede, secretary; Laurel Mack, treasurer.

Membership in the organization is open to all students interested in the foreign student program at UPS.

The time and place of the next meeting will be posted in the Tattler.

Replica of Famous Statue Will Highlight UPS Daffodil Float

The time is here again for the annual Tacoma-Puyallup Daffodil Parade, scheduled for April 12. UPS will again be competing with a float in the Education Division. The theme for this year's parade is "Masterpieces." In accord with this theme, the UPS float entry is planned as a replica of Michaelangelo's, Pieta.

A six-foot replica of the famous statue has been created by Jim

Jones. The statue will sit toward the back of the float which will be highlighted by six medieval pillars and an imitation stained-glass window. The rest of the float will be in harmony with the Renaissance.

UPS students are invited and encouraged to help with the decoration of the float tonight. The scene of the work party is Coleman's Warehouse, 2301 Lincoln Ave. Free donuts, coffee, and music will be provided. Any students needing transportation should meet in front of the Student Center at 6 or 7 p.m. tonight.
